The Pacific Northwest will provide the academic focus for Summer Quarter at The Evergreen State College, according to Academic Dean Byron Youtz, who is coordinating the ten-week session.

Registration for one of two coordinated studies programs or 17 group contracts has already begun. Persons can register through May 31 in person or by mail. A final walk-in registration will be held June 21 and 24 for those who cannot register early.

Two Coordinated Studies programs highlight the Summer session. One, entitled the Immigrant in America, will particularly focus on the migration of people to the Pacific Northwest. The other concentrates on Ecology and Natural History of the Northwest.

Other Summer Quarter offerings include group programs in Native American Studies; Marine Ecology of the Puget Sound; Ecology and Chemistry of Pollution; History of the West Revisited; Design Process/Applied Building Design; Calligraphy: The Dance of the Pen; Major Traditions of Musical Improvisation: East and West; Approaches to Mental Illness and Health; Revolutionary Voices from the Third World; Personal Ethics: An Attempt to Derive Ethical Principles; Psychology, Literature and Dream Reflection; and Ceramic Sculpture Process --- Earth, Fire and Air.

Summer students may also study off campus by enrolling in one of five programs:

Drawing from the Landscape, which will take students to the Lake Chelan area to capture its unique scenic displays;

Intermedia: Performances in Landscape, which will focus on artistic investigation of the landscape of Western Washington through the media of theater, drama, film, television, photography and writing;

Education and the Community, which will take educators and prospective teachers to the community to examine real and potential resources;

Dance or Theater Contract in New York City, which will enable students to take classes from world-famous artists and teachers in New York City; and Italian Language, Culture, and Cinema, which will require students to spend the summer in a rural Italian community two hours (by air) from Rome.

An opportunity to work with 26 faculty members in a wide variety of individual contracts is also available to summer students, Youtz said.

Fees for Washington residents are $80 for one unit, equivalent to four quarter hours of college credit; $110 for two units; $140 for three and $165 for four units, or a full academic load. Out-of-state student fees are $220, $300, $380, and $453, respectively.

Registration materials may be obtained by writing to the Office of the Registrar, The Evergreen State College, Olympia, Washington 98505.
