David J. Carnahan, Associate Dean of Library Services at The Evergreen State College, has been appointed by Governor Daniel J. Evans to a one-year term on the Washington State Commission on Telecommunications.

The Commission's function is to promote more effective uses of educational television in Washington.

Carnahan serves as Chairman of the Commission's Cable Television Committee and also is a member of the Technical Sub-Committee.

The 39-year-old Carnahan joined Evergreen as Coordinator of Media Services in 1969 after serving two years as Audio-Visual TV Coordinator at Seattle Community College. Immediately prior to that he had spent five years as Television Coordinator for Highline Public Schools in King County.
