More than forty Washington employers will participate in an all day Job Information seminar with seniors at The Evergreen State College April 10.

The meeting, organized by Evergreen's Office of Financial Aid and Placement, will serve two purposes, according to Placement Counselor Gail Martin.

"It will give our more than 300 seniors --- and other interested students --- a chance to talk to employers in eight key employment areas," she said. "It will help them orient themselves to the job market, to investigate the whole application process before they graduate, and to learn the specifics about employment in their particular areas of specialization."

"At the same time," Ms. Martin continued, "it will give employers from the fields of government, education, counseling services, communications, social services, the environment, and business and industry an opportunity to meet our students and become better acquainted with them and the college and its programs."

The all day session, scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. in the Evans Library Building, will include a welcome and discussion of Evergreen's educational philosophy by college President Charles J. McCann, an introduction to Evergreen internship programs by Cooperative Education Director Ken Donohue, and employer-student seminars focusing on manpower needs.

The visitors will also be given a complete tour of the Cooper Point Campus and an opportunity to hold "mock" interviews with students, Ms. Martin said.

A discussion of Evergreen's placement services and student credential files will conclude the event, the first of its kind at the three-year-old institution.
