

SUMMER '81

Super Saturday heralds the beginning of summer.

Umbrellas and tanning oil, jogging shorts and climbing gear, passports and farming manuals, folk tales and graduate studies are all pieces of the pattern that's become summer '81 at Evergreen.

Though the new quarter got off to a damp start—setting new June records for rainfall in Geoduck country—more than 700 students returned to the hallowed halls of academia for a summer filled with five- and ten-week-long course offerings and supplemented with more than 60 Leisure Education workshops providing opportunities to try everything from scaling some two dozen peaks in the coastal mountain ranges to beginning swimming and instruction in the art of being a clown.

While students hit the books—and often the waters of the campus pool or Puget Sound—hundreds of visitors began arriving to participate in a record number of conferences and conventions, ranging from football camps for high school athletes to weight-loss programs for teenagers, institutes for college and university teachers to seminars for student newspaper and yearbook editors.

Teenagers have also come to campus to attend the second year of the Bridges Program, designed to offer them a chance to master the basic concepts of environmental studies while living and studying in the Olympic National Park, and the Upward Bound Program, which helps prepare sophomores, juniors and seniors for post-high-school educational experiences.

The little folks have their niche on campus this summer, too, in the Driftwood Day Care Center that provides an educational program daily for youngsters three to six years old while their parents work or attend classes.

Graduate Work in MPA Continues

For the first time in Evergreen's history, graduate-level courses are being taught as part of the masters degree program in public administration. MPA students have selected from among studies in policy administration, organizational communication and citizen participation, community involvement and public relations.

Undergraduates face a full slate of basic studies—ranging from principles of economics to calculus, from environmental history and philosophy to clayworks, photography, botany, environmental design, music, and women's literature.

Those who might have hoped for a somewhat lighter academic load during the inviting days of summer were forewarned by at least one faculty member, Dr. David Powell. In his outline of a ten-week fiction workshop, the literature professor said students will be required to participate in lectures, critiques and readings. Standard fare for most classes. But, he went on to emphasize: "an unadjustable, unnegotiable minimum of 20 typed pages of second draft fiction per week will be required." So much for plans to devote afternoons to sun bathing!

Not all those earning academic credit this summer can be found seated at a seminar table. One group of students, led by faculty art historian Dr. Gordon Beck, is traveling in western Europe, focusing their studies on the art and culture of Greece and Italy. A Russian studies team, headed by Dr. Andrew Hanfman, is exploring the USSR, devoting three weeks to Moscow and Leningrad and another week to travel throughout the country, climaxing a full year's academic preparation on campus.

Still other students are mastering the geology of the Pacific Northwest, preparing for a three-week field trip, led by faculty geologist Dr. Jim Stroh, into the mountains of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and "perhaps western Montana."

And yet another student team, directed by faculty anthropologist Lynn Patterson, is scouring the hills and dales of southwest Washington, gathering stories, dreams, poetry, photographs and even jokes generated by the recent eruptions of Mount Saint Helens. Students in the five-week academic program, based in Vancouver, Washington, hope to publish the results of their work as an historic contribution to the folklore of the region which was buried under tons of ash and mud in May, 1980.

Nutritious Results as Well

The results of another academic program's work will be eaten long before this ReView is recycled. Greeners studying small scale agriculture under the tutelage of faculty members Dr. Jeff Kelly and Dr. Greg Steuwe-Portnoff have spent most of the summer with their hands in the dirt—mastering the art of organic gardening and other homestead-related skills at the college's eight-acre farm. When they're not planting and weeding, the industrious soil tillers are studying the role of alternative agriculture in modern society, changing attitudes toward alternative and traditional agriculture, and materials on human nutrition.

Not all work done on campus this summer generates academic credit. Some of it's for the sheer joy of accepting and meeting new challenges. The college's Leisure Education program has sponsored 23 sports workshops providing instruction ranging from racquetball to sport parachuting, tennis to golf, wilderness backpacking to climbing dormant volcanoes, gymnastics to white-water rafting.

For the slightly less adventurous, instruction is also available in belly dancing, hatha yoga and relaxation, aerobics, ballet and an array of art workshops including calligraphy, pottery, photography, silkscreen, papermaking, painting, weaving and drawing. Martial arts sessions also are open for children and adults, as well as instruction in juggling, Swedish massage, meditation, and bicycle repair, touring and maintenance.

For many, the visit to campus is just one of their summer stops. For those attending conferences, they may stay as long as three weeks for an accredited workshop in Aerospace Education, as briefly as three days for a public school administrators' retreat, or just one day—like 75 youngsters a day participating in YMCA camps on campus. They've had a chance to take full advantage of recreational facilities and ample opportunities to explore the college's 1000 acres, which still provide homes for deer, raccoons, birds and a full cast of nature's furry critters.

Countless others just happen to stop by the college in the summer, perhaps drawn by simple highway signs that say "The Evergreen State College," then point straight into the woods. They're welcomed by a campus that immediately reflects a slower, less hectic pace—one that encourages pauses to play a quick game of volleyball on the central plaza, enjoy a leisurely stroll through the woods to the 3,000 feet of beach front along Eld Inlet, or sit beneath the shade of towering Evergreen trees and submerge mind and soul into that long-awaited "good book." For these activities, too, have all become pieces of the colorful pattern of summer '81 at Evergreen.

Evans Chairs Regional Power Council

Evergreen President Dan Evans has been unanimously elected to chair the new eight-member Pacific Northwest Electric Power and Conservation Planning Council. The four-state body, comprised of delegations from Oregon, Idaho, Montana and Washington, has been given two years by the U.S. Congress to determine how to meet the future power needs of the Northwest.

Evans named to the council by Governor John Spellman, says the body has authority to plan for regional electrical needs, oversee the Bonneville Power Administration and implement the Northwest Power Bill. Its members must strive "to be independent of everyone"—the BPA, the utilities and the environmental groups—yet listen to all sides of the complex issues before them.

He accepted appointment to the board on a part-time basis and will continue as Evergreen's president.

Ingram Named Emeritus Faculty

Wini Ingram (left) and Board of Trustees Chairperson Jane B. Sylvester

Dr. Wini Ingram, a sociologist who joined Evergreen's teaching team in 1972, has become the college's first "emeritus member of the faculty." The honor, unanimously voted by the board of trustees, was presented during June 7 graduation exercises in Olympia.

Dr. Ingram was recognized by trustee resolution for her "nine years of outstanding service to Evergreen and her prior years of service to the national higher education community as teacher, colleague, critic, guide and friend."

The popular Evergreen professor is a native Washingtonian who graduated from Seattle's Garfield High School in 1932, completed her masters degree in sociology from the University of Washington in 1938, and earned her doctorate in clinical psychology from Northwestern University in 1951.

Spanning nearly 40 years, Dr. Ingram's professional career includes service as a student psychologist for the Lincoln State School and Colony in Illinois, as a research assistant to the Chicago Urban League, and as a clinical psychologist for the Neuropsychiatric Institute in Ann Arbor, Michigan, for six years before accepting an appointment as director of the Department of Clinical Psychology at the Hawthorn Center in Northville, Michigan. After 16 years there, she returned to the Pacific Northwest to begin teaching at Evergreen.

Despite bouts of rheumatoid arthritis that prompted her early retirement, Dr. Ingram looks forward to active years ahead, many of them devoted to documenting the history of her family.

Veteran Faculty Retire, Resign

Five veteran Evergreen faculty members completed their work on campus in June and will not be rejoining the teaching team this fall. An additional four visiting professors have moved on to new assignments.

Faculty sociologist Dr. Wini Ingram has become the first professor to retire from the teaching team (see related story in this issue). Also leaving the campus teaching staff in June were Dr. Leroi Smith, psychology; Dr. Lee Anderson, physical science; Paul Marsh, international relations; and Dr. Robert Gottlieb, music. Visiting faculty members not returning next year include: Dr. David Englert, music; Fred Stone, biogeography; Thomas Ott, filmmaker; and Dr. Shelby Sherrod, chemistry.

Four New Administrators Named

Four new administrators have been appointed to help direct Evergreen this fall as the college prepares to begin its eleventh academic year. New to the administration will be Assistant Academic Dean Elizabeth (Betsy) Diffendal, MPA Graduate Studies Director Dr. Russell Lidman, Educational Outreach Coordinator Betsy Bridwell, and newly hired Bookstore Manager Laura Nole.

Diffendal, a faculty member in applied social sciences at Evergreen since 1975, assumes the two-year assistant deanship in September, replacing York Wong, who will return to the faculty. Diffendal formerly worked as manager of a social science research firm in Tacoma and as a director of evaluation for the Seattle/King County Economic Opportunity Board before joining Evergreen's faculty, where she has taught programs in childcare, Native American studies, and for off-campus outreach programs in Tacoma.

Lidman, who co-directed Evergreen's masters degree program in public administration during the planning year, has assumed the directorship of MPA for a two-year term, replacing Dr. Guy Adams, who headed graduate studies during the past academic year and will return to full-time teaching this fall. An economist, Lidman joined Evergreen's faculty in 1974 following work as an economic consultant to the former U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and as a research associate and lecturer for the Institute for Research on Poverty at the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

Bridwell, hired by Director of College Relations Chuck Fowler in June, fills the post vacated by Earlyse Swift and assumes responsibilities for working with academic and admissions staff to promote special on-campus and outreach programs, including those in graduate study, part-time studies, and at the Vancouver campus. She'll work closely with personnel and training officers in state and local governmental agencies to determine how Evergreen can best aid employees through full- and part-time academic programs. She will also seek to help build educational relationships with local business communities, especially those in Thurston, Mason, Lewis and Clark Counties.

Bridwell brings to her new Evergreen job nine years of experience in higher education, including work as coordinator of employer/college relations at Fort Steilacoom Community College, where she has helped promote college programs in Pierce County, developing lines of communication with local businesses and helping place students in part-time jobs.

Nole, hired by Vice President for Business Richard Schwartz in July to replace founding Bookstore Manager Doris McCarty, who now holds a similar position at the University of Denver, has for the past two years directed the campus bookstore at Edmonds Community College. She's also worked for bookstore operations at Ohio State University and Fort Steilacoom Community College.

Administrative changes also have occurred in the Campus Security Office and the Recreation Center. Veteran Security Chief McDonald Smith and Security Officers Ann Brown and Carl Renshaw submitted their resignations in June. Security Lieutenant Gary Russell has been named by Schwartz to serve as acting chief. Jan Lambert has been named Director of Athletics and Pete Steilberg has assumed the new title of Director of Recreation and Leisure Education.

New Faculty Join Teaching Team this Fall

Thirteen new regular full-time faculty members have accepted three-year appointments to begin teaching at Evergreen this fall, according to Academic Vice President and Provost Dr. Byron Youtz.

Three of the new 13 professors will begin teaching graduate studies in the Masters of Public Administration Program. Working with newly named MPA Director Dr. Russell Lidman will be: Dr. Kenneth Dolbeare, political science; Dr. David Paulsen, philosophy; and Dr. William Arney, sociology.

The remaining ten, who will concentrate their efforts in undergraduate programs, include: Clyde Barlow, chemistry; Robert Cole, physics; Virginia Darney, humanities (Vancouver campus); Patricia Labine, agriculture; Lucia Harrison, management (Vancouver campus); Jean Mandeborg, visual arts; Rita Pougiales, outdoor education; Stephen Scott, music; Linda Thornberg, film; and Gail Tremblay, multicultural studies.

Dr. Dolbeare, former chairman of the political science department at the University of Washington, has most recently served as a full professor at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. He has authored ten books on political science, including a widely respected basic text, American Politics: Policies, Power and Change, now in its fourth edition. He has taught at Hofstra University in New York and the University of Wisconsin at Madison, in addition to four years of teaching at the University of Washington and six years at the University of Massachusetts.

Dr. Paulsen, former associate professor of philosophy in the College of Public Affairs and Community Services at the University of Nebraska at Omaha, has served on Evergreen's faculty as a visiting professor in philosophy since 1978, offering instruction in advanced studies in public administration and public policy, evaluation research and statistics. He gives Evergreen six years' teaching experience at the University of Nebraska, one at Lawrence University and three at Reed College.

Dr. Arney, associate professor of sociology at Dartmouth College for the past seven years, also has taught in the Department of Community Medicine at the Usher Institute within the University of Edinburgh, Scotland, and at Guy's Hospital Medical School in London. He served as a visiting professor at the University of Colorado and as director of evaluation for the Vermont/New Hampshire Regional Prenatal program.

Dr. Barlow has served as a research assistant professor in both the Medical School's Department of Surgery and the Department of Biochemistry and Biophysics at the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Cole, most recently chairman of the Physics Department at the University of North Carolina at Asheville, is a former visiting faculty physicist at Evergreen.

Virginia Darney has taught as a visiting faculty member in literature, women's studies and American studies in Evergreen's Vancouver program for the past three years. She's also a former coordinator for American civilization studies at Pine Manor College in Massachusetts.

Dr. Labine has been a faculty member in biology and coordinator of urban and environmental studies at William James College in the Grand Valley State Colleges in Michigan. A Phi Beta Kappa member, she has completed postdoctoral research on biomedical data processing at the National Institute of Health.

Dr. Harrison, a former assistant professor of public administration and urban studies at San Diego State University, formerly served as associate director for administrative data processing at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Jean Mandeborg, a visiting faculty member in fine arts at Evergreen, has also taught at Idaho State University and the University of Michigan.

Rita Pougiales, a 1972 Evergreen graduate, joined the faculty as a visiting professor in 1979. She served for two years as a graduate research assistant at the University of Oregon's Center for Educational Policy and Management, and a year as a researcher for that school's library.

Stephen Scott has been an assistant professor of music at The Colorado College for the past 12 years, in addition to directing the Pearson Electronic Sound Studio. He also founded and directs The Colorado College New Music Ensemble.

Linda Thornberg, an independent filmmaker for the past three years, formerly worked as an audio-visual specialist for the Ohio Historical Society, as a producer/director for a Columbus, Ohio television station, and as a coordinator of the Clintonville Video Workshop.

Gail Tremblay, who has taught this past year as a faculty member at Evergreen, is a published poet who has been an assistant professor in the Goodrich Scholarship Program at the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

AlumNews

The Evergreen State College
Newsletter of the Alumni Association

Volume 3, Number 4
August 1981

It Pays to Advertise

The 1981-82 alumni directory will soon go to press, and we're designating space in it for advertising for alumni professionals and businesses.

Advertising will accomplish three things:

1. Expose your name and profession or business to other Evergreen graduates,
2. Encourage Evergreen grads to use other Evergreen grads for professional services,
3. Help defray the cost of publishing the directory, which we give away free to Association members.

If you'd like to take advantage of this opportunity, send your business card or other ad copy (dimensions: 3 1/2"x2") and a check or money order in the amount of $10, made payable to Alumni Directory, to the Alumni Office, The Evergreen State College, Olympia, WA 98505. Print run is 300-500 copies.

The deadline is Friday, August 21. The directory will be available for sale and mail orders on September 12, for $2.00 each. Association members will receive their free copy by mail, or they may pick one up at the reunion.

Thanks for Volunteering

Special recognition and thanks are due the following cadre of volunteers who came out in enthusiastic support of Association projects on Super Saturday and Graduation weekend, June 6 and 7.

Super Saturday chicken barbeque chefs were J.C. Armbruster, Bob Crocker '74, Keith Goehner '78, Julie Grant '79, Doug King '77, J.P. Jones III '73, Jeff Parsons '79, Nam Chu Pearl '79, Bruce Shamberg, Neil Shamberg '80, Ralph Smith '77, Kevin Thomas '79, Janice Wood '74, and Martha Woodhull '78.

Super Saturday beer-garden staffers were John Alkins '76, Lynn Freed '78, Doug King '77, Myra Melford, Brian Milbrath '78, Bud Ruther, Robin Stanton, and Mark Vale.

Volunteers at the 1981 graduation ceremonies were Erick Banning Buck '80, Steve Buxbaum '80, Joan Conrad '75, Bob Crocker '74, Keith Goehner '78, Nam Chu Pearl '79, and Janice Wood '74.

Thanks to all of you—we couldn't have done it without ya!

Editor: Ralph Smith
Writer: Bonnie Marie

Send written submissions, photos, graphics and inquiries to the Editor, AlumNews, c/o Alumni Office, LIB 3103, The Evergreen State College, Olympia, WA 98505.

AlumNotes

David Adams '79, Seattle, operates a flower concession.

Monica (Mea) Alexander '79, Seattle, is a community organizer for Pike Place Market Preservation and Development Authority.

Donna Alora '79, San Anselmo, CA, is an assistant pastor for Inland Presbytery, Spokane, WA. She received her Masters in Divinity this June from San Francisco Theological Seminary.

Clara Austenfield '79, Beaverton, OR, is employed as a computer operator. Clara is applying to Portland State University for masters degree work in sociology.

Joyce Baker '79, Kent, WA is a management consultant for Pacifics.

Thomas, '79, and Janet Balaban '79, Olympia, are employed by Pearsall Floral Company. Janet is a florist and Thomas works as an assistant grower.

Laird Bauer '80, Seattle, is a night-staff sleepover counselor at the Resource Foundation, a residential treatment center for mentally and emotionally disturbed children.

Susan Beck '78, Olympia, is employed as a library reference assistant at the Timberland Regional Library. This June, she is leaving for Morocco on a two-year Peace Corps assignment to teach English to Moroccan high school students.

Richard Bever '80, Lacey, is the legislation/education director for the Washington State Council of County and City Employees. Richard also has been pro-tem Mayor of Lacey.

Steven Bogdon '78, Seattle, is a law clerk for Houghton, Cluck, Coughlin and Riley, and is attending the UW law school.

Ruth Boove '79, Gig Harbor, WA, is the Mayor of the City of Gig Harbor.

James Boran '78, Friday Harbor, WA, is employed at Webb Camp Sea Farm in the San Juans. He currently is acting director of ORCA Survey, and a member of the board of directors of Moclips Cetological Society.

Kay Boyd '76, Olympia, manages a portion of the state CETA program for Employment Security. She is a Councilwoman for the City of Lacey and also is on the KAOS Advisory Board at Evergreen. Kay was honored as one of the ten outstanding 1980 Thurston County citizens.

Lori Gene Larsen Boyer '80, Elma, WA, is a payroll clerk/assistant paymaster for Morrison-Knudsen.

Jack Bozarth '78, Olympia, is employed as a staff counselor by the Maple Lane School. Jack helped develop some of the current treatment programs.

Brad Bresolin '79, Tacoma, is the director of alcohol and drug programs for the Puyallup Indian tribe.

Jody Brotman '77, Mercer Island, WA, is self-employed as a movement specialist and teaches in the artist-in-the-schools program.

Beverly Brown '78, Seattle, has received a masters degree in urban planning from Antioch University.

Jerry Chapman '78, Chehalis, WA, is employed as a plus-tree superintendent by Weyerhaeuser Company. Jerry received his M.P.A. degree in December, 1980, and currently is working on his M.B.A. from the University of Puget Sound.

James Chong-Chu Chen '76, Seattle, is a second-year medical student at the University of Washington, where he earlier received an M.S. in exercise physiology.

Irene Christy '79, Olympia, is a secretary for the Jail Commission.

Stephen Churchill '79, Seattle, is employed by Early Winters as a data processing manager.

William Cleland '79, Olympia, is employed by DSHS as an environmental health specialist.

Patricia Chesachley '80, Eugene, OR, is an organist for Central Lutheran Church in Eugene. She is working toward a Master of Music degree at the University of Oregon.

Dona Rae Cloud '80, Port Angeles, WA, is a librarian and researcher for the Clallam County Museum. Dona is studying art at Peninsula College.

Daniel Cohen '77, Hoboken, NJ, has received an M.S. degree in journalism from Columbia University. He currently is freelancing in photography and writing.

Pat R. Cole '81, Olympia, is the director of the Energy Outreach Center.

Carl Cook '76, Olympia, has been employed as a radio announcer and productions and promotion manager for KGY for the past four years. Carl devotes his spare time to working as an independent producer of records and commercials.

Jenneane Dietel '78, Battle Ground, WA, directs the Community Education Program for the Battle Ground School District. She was named "Outstanding Community Educator, 1981" by the WSCEA.

John Doherty '79, Tacoma, is a pilot for Northwest Airlines.

Richard Dowd '78, Seattle, is studying toward his M.B.A. degree at the University of Puget Sound.

Shannon Downey '78, Seattle, is studying toward an M.S. degree in forest ecology at the University of Washington.

Conrad Driscoll '80, Rochester, MN, is employed by Energy Shed. He also is starting his own business manufacturing and installing solar collectors for a CAP agency.

Doug Ellis '75, has been named political director for the State Republican Central Committee. Ellis, a charter member and former officer of the Alumni Association, has most recently served as assistant to Bill Polk, Republican Speaker of the State House of Representatives.

Rose Ann Elway '78, Montesano, WA, is the chief accountant and director of administrative services for the Grays Harbor County Department of Public Works.

Lynn Engels '77, recently moved to Washington, D.C., to serve as special assistant to the U.S. Department of the Interior. A former AP reporter and information director for the BIA, Engels has spent most of the past two years working in the Portland area as a public relations consultant.

Sally Ensing '78, Tucson, AZ, is a part-time counselor for "Welcome Home." She is attending the University of Arizona for her Ph.D. in educational psychology.

Daniel Farber '79, Berkeley, CA, will receive his M.C.P. from UC-Berkeley this year.

Carl Fawcett '80, Olympia, is a store clerk for the State Liquor Control Board.

Bruce Franklin '75, Sarasota, FL, is the projects coordinator for Architects Diversified, Inc. He received a masters degree in 1979 from UCLA.

Lynn Freed '78, Beaverton, OR, is the production planner for Floating Point Systems.

Janine Freier '80, Olympia, is a freelance artist.

Imelda Garcia '78, Kennewick, WA, is the senior merchandise manager for J.C. Penney and is attending Columbia Basin College.

Christine Gauger '78, Lincoln, NE, is attending the University of Nebraska and works for the Sanctuary Lounge as a bartender.

Beverly Garrick '79, Shelton, WA, is a data control clerk/secretary for Mathematica Policy Research.

Ben George '79, Tacoma, is a self-employed musician.

Jacqueline Geppert '80, Lacey, is a planning aide for the Thurston Regional Planning Council.

Patricia Giebs '78, Santa Clara, CA, is the assistant sanitarian for the County of Santa Clara.

Judy Guykema '80, Olympia, has been named vice president for provider services, Group Health Dental Co-operative.

Tracy Hamby '78, Olympia, is employed by Evergreen as a photographer. Tracy is applying to graduate schools for study toward an M.F.A. in photography.

Roland (Chuck) Hamel '79, Tacoma, is a hospital attendant for Western State Hospital. He is working on a book of poetry to be published in the near future.

Wes Hamilton '78, Olympia, is bureau contract coordinator for the DSHS Bureau of Alcohol and Substance Abuse.

Marcia Hanson '78, Olympia, is a teller at South Sound National Bank and teaches evening courses in photography at Centralia College.

Kate Harris '78, Seattle, is a program director at the Pike Place Market Senior Center.

Mary Harris '79, Portland, is employed by Boettcher, LaLonde and LA where she assists in the defense of juveniles both in and out of court. Mary is attending law school at Lewis and Clark.

David Hatfield '78, Seattle, is a geologist for the U.S. Bureau of Mines.

Charles Haviland, '78, Spanaway, WA, is employed as a land surveyor, and is enrolled in the City College M.B.A. program.

John Heater '79, Olympia, is a baker for Blue Heron Bakery.

John Henshell '78, Camas, WA, is the children's librarian at Tigard Library.

Margo Hertlein '81, Olympia, is a human resource development specialist at Employment Security.

Molly Holscher '80, Olympia, is an interviewer for Employment Security.

AlumNotes

Judy Howard '78, Vancouver, WA, is the director of YWCA Emergency House, a shelter for battered women.

Lynn Hunt '80, Olympia, is employed by the Independent Order of Foresters as a part-time deputy.

Steve Hunter '79, Olympia, is the director of institutional research at Evergreen.

Debra Janisen '78, Olympia, is a program coordinator for Employment Security.

LaNeya Johnson '80, Olympia, is working toward her M.A. degree in psychological counseling at Pacific Lutheran University.

Jay Kahn '74, Seattle, has been teaching on the college level, and is currently editing a book on art and politics that will be released next winter. Jay received an M.F.A. from California Institute of the Arts in 1975.

Elizabeth Kauffman '79, Seattle, is attending the UW School of Medicine.

Ralph Kile '78, Vancouver, WA, is an animal control officer for Clark County, and works part-time doing vocational evaluations of industrially injured workers.

Donna Kreiensieck '80, Corvallis, MT, is employed by the Forest Service as a fire detection lookout.

Phillip Landale '79, Banning, CA, is a guidance aide with the San Diego City Schools. He is applying to graduate schools for doctoral work in educational psychology.

John Larsen '78, Tacoma, is a self-employed contractor and photographer.

Steven Layton '78, Wichita, KS, is an Air Force missile facilities technician.

Jacqueline Leighton '80, Seattle, is an intern at Intiman Theater.

Deborah Leung '79, Olympia, is a substitute teacher, and is working to build an Asian/American Walk-in Center in Olympia.

Patricia Meldrich '80, Satsop, WA, is attending the John Bastyr College of Naturopathic Medicine.

Carson Miller '78, Jamaica Plain, MA, is a fundraiser for a Boston women's shelter.

David Millhauser '79, Los Angeles, is an urban agriculture coordinator for the University of California Cooperative Extension Service.

Cathy Monroe '77, Bremerton, WA, is an employment counselor for the Kitsap Community Action Program.

Charles Moore '78, Bellevue, WA, is a minister and licensed massage therapist at the House of Healing.

Dianna Moore '78, Olympia, is a community organizer for Mason Youth Service.

Nannette Morgan '78, Seattle, is employed by the Samya Health Center.

Jonathan Morris '80, San Jose, CA, is an analyst for Control Data Corporation.

Mary Ossinger '80, Port Angeles, WA, is an inspector with the U.S. Immigration Service. She will be attending Western Washington University in September to earn her M.S. in biology.

Constance Palaia '76, Olympia, and former student Rosa Weiss are partners in Iris, an Olympia-based jewelry and bead business.

Randy Partridge '78, Evanston, IL, is pursuing his Ph.D. in learning disabilities at Northwestern University.

Anne Prescott '80, Olympia, is a fiscal coordinator for the Washington State Building Trades Council.

Mary Prevost '79, Olympia, is attending the University of Puget Sound law school.

Rose Marie Rondel '78, Vancouver, WA, has earned a degree in horticulture.

Rozanne Rants '79, Tumwater, is a counselor for the Community Mental Health Center.

Lynn Stonecipher '80, Shelton, WA, is a hydrology technician for the Forest Service, Olympic National Forest.

Peter Storti '81, Olympia, a diversion specialist and volunteer coordinator for Thurston Youth Services, is applying to law school.

Steve Strasen '80, Issaquah, WA, is a part-time transit operator for Seattle Metro.

Sieghan Sullivan '79, Olympia, is a technical aide for the Department of Game. He has developed an interest in wildlife art over the past year, and several drawings are due to be published soon.

Russell Talbert '78, Vancouver, WA, is a self-employed real-estate appraiser.

Gail Tanaka '74, Seattle, is the director of the International District Community Health Center. She received her M.S.W. degree in 1977 from the University of Washington.

Francis Tartaglia '79, Olympia, a part-time musician, is enrolled in the Evergreen teacher certification program.

Catherine Tate '78, Seattle, is assistant community relations planner for Metro's Duwamish Pollution Abatement Project.

James Tatz '80, Ashland, OR, has been accepted to the Albert Einstein College of Medicine.

Helen Terry '78, Vancouver, WA, personnel director for the City of Vancouver, is enrolled in the Lewis and Clark College M.P.A. program.

Margaret Tharp '79, Olympia, is a freelance graphic designer.

Howard Tuttle '80, Puyallup, WA, is an apprentice plumber with McCarth Corp.

Melee Valett '79, Richland, WA, is pursuing graduate work in biology at Oregon State University.

Martine Vanpee '78, Amherst, MA, is attending Smith College for his M.S.W. degree.

Douglas Wallace '80, Tukwila, WA, is a district sales manager for M.A.C. Business Corp.

Brian Walsh '78, Olympia, is an environmental planner for the Department of Ecology.

Richard Walter '78, Olympia, is employed by Hardel Mutual as a boilerman.

Sherry Warren '78, Tacoma, is a learning skills specialist at Evergreen.

William Weber '78, Seattle, is a construction specifier for Mills, John & Rigdon.

Kyle Wienk '77, Olympia, is an engineering technician for the Forest Service.

Erskine White '76, Olympia, is a self-employed book-binder and paper-marbler.

Alumni Reunion

Evergreen's doors opened ten years ago, and this year's alumni reunion will celebrate that historic event and the success of the Evergreen dream in the ensuing years.

For those of you who will arrive Friday night, we'll have early registration and an information reception at 7 p.m.

If you're up for a serious academic experience (or just a wave of nostalgia), Saturday morning is for you. At 10 a.m., a keynote speaker will address our theme of "Progress and Potential." At 11 a.m., you have a choice:

a book seminar stressing the social implications of progress, or a panel discussing the economic implications of progress. If you plan to attend the seminar, pick up a copy of The Culture of Narcissism by Christopher Lasch and read it prior to coming to campus. Or, if you're not into summer homework, you may rather attend the panel, also at 11 a.m.

At 12:30 p.m., we'll gather for a deli style lunch and entertainment. The annual business meeting of the Alumni Association, where we'll elect board members and officers for next year, begins at 2 p.m. The bar opens at 4 p.m. for the hardcore party crowd, and the Campus Recreation Center will be open for free use of the pool, racquetball/handball courts, sauna, etc. The recently invented Geo-duck Sludge will be the featured libation at the pre-dinner cocktail hour starting at 6 p.m.

Rendezvous at Evergreen on Sept. 12

The famous alumni barbequed chicken will delight your tastebuds at the 7 p.m. dinner, and one of the hottest bands in Seattle will bring you to your feet at 9 p.m., and keep you dancing until the wee hours of Sunday morning.

This year's reunion has something for everybody—so join us on Saturday, September 12, for an event that will keep you smiling all year.

Elizabeth Kaye '78, Portland, is a humane education superintendent at the Oregon Humane Society.

Toy Kay '78, Olympia, is teaching English as a Second Language for Indo-Chinese refugees. She was one of ten finalists for the 1980 Thurston County "Citizen of the Year" award.

James Kennett '78, Bandon, OR, is a counselor for Belloni Girls Ranch. He also owns and operates an American Youth Hostel in Bandon.

Sandra Kent '78, Seattle, is an instructor at Seattle Central Community College. She received an M.A. in English/TESL from Portland State University. After June, 1981, she will be teaching overseas for a few years.

Steven Kernes '79, Port Angeles, WA, is the sheriff of Clallam County. Steve and Evergreen faculty member Duke Kuehn have written a book which has been contracted with a publishing company.

Ruth Khaw '80, Shelton, WA, is a medical technologist at the Mason General Hospital.

Claire Litchman '80, Olympia, is the vice-president of WIN Corporation Investments and Land Development.

Carrene Loudon '80, Gig Harbor, WA, is a labor relations representative for the Washington Public Employees Association. She is attending law school at the University of Puget Sound.

Kathy Lusher '79, Prosser, WA, is presently working as an apprentice with an international ceramic artist for one year. She is on a two-year apprenticeship in Hizu Wakamatsu, Japan.

Charles Lutz '80, Olympia, is self-employed as a garden consultant.

Rebecca McAninch-Dake '79, Olympia, is a word processing operator for the Department of Revenue.

Barry Martin '78, Hoquiam, is associate director of the Hoquiam YMCA.

Michael Maloy '78, Long Beach, CA, is an assistant manager for Trans-American Financial Services.

David Nelsen '78, Bow, WA, is a DSHS caseworker.

Donna Nickerson '80, M.I.A., Philippines, is a Peace Corps volunteer doing marine conservation research.

Johanna Nitzke '75, Seattle, is the director of Foster White Gallery.

Carolyn Norrel '80, Rainier, OR, is a part-time English instructor at Lower Columbia College, and is applying to Warren Wilson College to earn an M.F.A. in creative writing.

Richard O'Brien '78, Providence, is working toward a Bachelor of Architecture degree at the Rhode Island School of Design.

Helene O'Malley '78, Olympia, is a property agent/program coordinator with Employment Security.

Terry Oliver '73, Vancouver, WA, a BPA public utilities specialist, is working on a program to provide financial assistance to Indian tribes, states and local governments for electrical energy conservation.

Robert Ranzenbach '78, Bellevue, WA, an M.P.A. student at Evergreen, is director of joint services for the Air National Guard.

Deanna Ray '81, Concrete, WA, works part-time for Washington State Parks and plans to do graduate study in environmental planning.

Mark Reid '79, Shelton, WA, a geologist with the U.S. Bureau of Mines, will enter UC-Santa Cruz this fall for doctoral work in geology.

William Shaw '78, Olympia, directs the Receptive Tour Department of the Doug Fox Travel Agency.

Linda Shurtliff '78, Vancouver, WA, a manager for Pacific Northwest Bell, received her M.B.A. in May, 1980, from the University of Portland.

David Slagle '79, Kirkland, WA, is a mental health specialist at Fairfax Hospital.

Stephen Smith '80, Seattle, is a day-care teacher.

Anne Sobba-Brohan '78, Puyallup, WA, is co-owner of Green Firs Books in Tacoma.

1980-81 Haas Scholar Todd Denman receives the Haas Foundation Award of Merit certificate in recognition of his excellence in filmmaking from Trustee Wes Berglund.

Communications Senior Wins Haas Award

Mara Morgen, a Tacoma senior, has been selected to receive the second annual Haas Foundation Award of Merit for the 1981-82 academic year.

Morgen, a Wilson High School graduate and transfer student to Evergreen from Tacoma Community College, has served as a reporter and editorial and opinion page editor for the TCC campus newspaper, as an assistant for the school's public relations department, and as a moderator for a regular public service program on radio station KTAC.

A single mother of two, Morgen has continued to work part-time for a Pierce County engineering firm and contributed volunteer service to the Tacoma Crisis Clinic and the Geiger Elementary School parent-teacher organization.

The Haas Foundation seeks to encourage "the highest standards of public service in radio and television broadcasting" by granting merit awards of $1500 to Washington State students in communications. Selection is based on academic achievement, proven ability to contribute to "the betterment of the field of communications," and "excellence in the quality and character of the recipient."

Evergreen's first Haas Scholar was student filmmaker Todd Denman of Yellow Springs, Ohio.

Grant Announced for Writing Consortium

The National Endowment for the Humanities has announced the award of a $380,000 grant to the six-school Pacific Northwest Writing Consortium for a faculty development program called "Writing Across the Curriculum." The grant, which awards Evergreen approximately $50,000 over the next three years, was developed by faculty from Lewis and Clark College in Portland, the Universities of Oregon and Washington, Pacific Lutheran University, the University of Puget Sound and Evergreen.

Its purpose, according to Academic Dean Dr. Barbara Smith, is to "develop and support faculty who teach writing throughout the curriculum in the context of disciplinary and interdisciplinary education."

As the ReView went to press, funding for the proposal had been frozen, along with all other NEH monies, pending final approval by Congress of that organization's budget. The project, Dr. Smith has been assured, "is listed under Category A, as a first-priority item when and if NEH's budget is approved."

If funding is granted, Smith said it will enable four Evergreen faculty and four high school teachers to attend the Summer Institute for College Teachers on campus this month. It also will support two months of faculty work this summer to develop writing units.

Next year the grant will provide funding for an Evergreen faculty member to serve as a Danforth Visiting Fellow working in writing; it will support exchange visits among three Evergreen and three high school teachers; and it will fund an additional month's work developing writing units by two Evergreen faculty members. The third year of the grant, 1983-84, it will fund courses in writing in two western Washington high schools and a third summer session for Evergreen faculty to develop additional writing units.

Filmmaker, Actress to Launch New Program

Filmmaker Bruce Baillie and veteran Broadway actress Dale Soules will visit Evergreen next year to launch a newly established Artist-in-Residence program which will give students a chance to work with a variety of professionals for a full quarter each.

The new Artist-in-Residence program, announced by Academic Dean Dr. Barbara Smith, begins in September when Baillie, who founded the independent filmmakers' cooperative Canyon Cinema in 1961, will teach a full-time academic program for 20 film students. Baillie, 49, earned a bachelors degree from the University of Minnesota in 1955, studied at the London School of Film Technique 1959-60, and received an MFA from the San Francisco Art Institute in 1971. He has taught at the Mendocino Art Center in California, at Rice University in Texas, and was artist-in-residence at Bard College in New York from 1974 to 1977.

He has had print purchases, showings and lectures at major museums in New York City, Montreal, Tokyo and Stockholm, and has received Guggenheim, American Film Institute and Rockefeller Foundation fellowships. He's also won the San Francisco International Film Festival Golden Gate Award, the Ann Arbor Grand Prize and the Moholy-Nagy Award.

Baillie's Fall Quarter filmmaking program will be open to students who have taken the Evergreen program "Recording and Structuring Light and Sound" or its equivalent. Currently living in Elizaville, New York, he will arrive on campus before fall registration to review portfolios and interview students. Those who wish to be considered for the program should contact the Registrar.

Visiting artist for Winter Quarter will be Dale Soules, an actress with extensive theatre experience, including Broadway productions of Hair and The Magic Show.

At the age of 14, she was working as a technician in New York's off-Broadway theaters, in addition to studying acting at the H.B. Studio. She has worked as a sound technician, property mistress, assistant director and stage manager, and has had roles in dozens of stage and film productions. She co-starred as Cal, the magician's assistant, in the four-year Broadway run of The Magic Show, and subsequently appeared in off-Broadway productions of New Jerusalem, Getting Out, and The Family.

Soules has had roles in several New York Shakespeare Festival and Manhattan Theater Club productions, and has appeared on the Today Show with Barbara Walters, the Mike Douglas Show, the Dick Cavett Show, and many others. She also played the title role and served as associate producer for the award-winning film The Bag Lady.

Students in Soules' Winter Quarter program will receive an intensive introduction to professional theater and will create an original theater piece to be performed at the close of the quarter. Students who have completed "Foundations of Performing Arts" or its equivalent may preregister for the program, but retention is dependent on an interview with Soules during the January 3 academic Fair. The program is expected to fill up quickly.

Honors and Other "Good News" Highlight 1980-81

The 1980-81 academic year started off with a burst of good news—the highest enrollment in Evergreen's history. From September through June, so many things happened so quickly, we thought ReView readers might enjoy a quick recap:

October

Evergreen's fall 1980 enrollment of 2536 full-time equivalent students is highest in ten-year history. The college's 13.6% gain in FTE above the previous fall was the highest gain among the state's six public four-year institutions.

Ninety-three percent of Evergreen's graduates who have reported to the Office of Career Planning and Placement have been successfully placed in jobs, graduate schools or other situations of their choice. The statistics, which cover the first eight graduating classes, show a total of 2,605 alums reporting; of those 2,416 have secured placement. Sixty-eight percent are employed, 19% are in graduate schools, 7% are seeking employment, and 6% are traveling, home-making or involved in other activities.

Washington Mutual Savings Bank Foundation

awards Evergreen $25,000 to fund a Distinguished Fellow In-Residence Program for the new graduate studies program in public administration. The grant enables Evergreen to invite at least one expert from state, regional or local government or private business to spend up to one quarter per year in residence.

"Collaborations" a double disc, long-playing record album by two dozen Evergreen students, came off the presses and began going into the hands of radio stations and record stores.

November

Three Evergreen alums win State Legislative elective offices: Eleanor Lee, a Republican from the Thirty-third district, was reelected to State Senate; Shirley Galloway and Dennis Heck, both Democrats, were elected to the State House of Representatives.

U.S. Department of Education awards Evergreen $50,000 to provide "more comprehensive support services" to students beginning or resuming their higher educational careers encumbered by disadvantages that could adversely affect their retention rate.

December

The Seawulff, Evergreen's 38-foot sailing ship, is launched December 4. Under construction for more than four years—and dreamed about for more than a decade—the wooden ship will become a floating classroom for studies in marine and other ecologically related studies.

January

Two Evergreen faculty scientists, Dr. Elizabeth Kutter and Dr. Burton Guttman, have been granted an additional $40,000 by the National Science Foundation to continue genetic research they have been directing on campus for the past 18 months.

February

Evergreen graduate Nina Fuller (Class of 1980) scores 772 on the Law School Admission Test, which places her in the top 99.6% in the nation for the rigorous exam. Senior Kathy Hinsch becomes one of 100 students selected from throughout the country to receive a scholarship to attend the National Women's Leadership Network Conference on Sex Equity in Washington, D.C. in March.

March

Richard Dudman, chief Washington correspondent for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, comes to campus as the first of six prominent visitors in the Woodrow Wilson Visiting Fellows Program.

April

Diane Devlin and Stefanie Hare, two Evergreen seniors, have been awarded a $24,719 grant by the Washington Commission for the Humanities to prepare an in-depth film documentary on the salmon industry in the State of Washington.

Students stage eight-day

Earth Fair which attracts more than 2,000 visitors to campus for more than 40 public presentations ranging from evening lectures to afternoon workshops, from feature films to entertainment and exhibits by more than 100 organizations concerned with addressing the major issues facing Americans in the 1980s.

Three faculty members

win national honors: Dr. Peter Elbow is chosen for one of two Kent Postdoctoral Fellowships by the Society for Values in Higher Education in conjunction with Wesleyan University's Center for the Humanities. Dr. Sally Cloninger has been selected for a Fulbright Senior lectureship in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. Thomas Ott has won first place in the documentary division of the prestigious Focus film competition.

May

Metropolitan Life Foundation has awarded Evergreen $10,000 to conduct an institutional self-study and convene a National Conference on Alternative Higher Education in Olympia next fall.

Two first-year film

students, Jane O'Mara and Lisa Jamieson, have won first prize in the National Student Video Competition, cosponsored by the American Film Institute and the Sony Corporation. Their 18-minute color videotape, called "Choices," focuses on the abortion controversy.

June

Super Saturday, Evergreen's third annual spring festival, attracts more than 10,000 visitors to campus for a day filled with entertainments, arts and crafts exhibits, children's activities, recreational events, foods and surprises.

More than 600 seniors graduate in commencement ceremonies conducted at Evergreen's Olympia, Vancouver and Port Angeles campuses, concluding the college's tenth academic year and bringing to more than 4,870 the total number of Evergreen graduates since June of 1972.

Thousands Drawn to Campus for Super Saturday and Graduation Weekend

Evergreen celebrated the conclusion of its tenth academic year and the graduation of more than 600 students in June with the help of thousands of visitors from throughout the state and probably the nation.

Drawn to campus by invitations to the third annual Super Saturday celebration, the college's "almost annual" Rowdy (masquerade) Ball and the tenth commencement ceremony, an estimated twelve to fifteen thousand persons explored Geoduck country undaunted by frequent showers and at times jam-packed parking lots.

The annual weekend celebration got off to an early start as Super Saturday dawned on June 6. Artists and food vendors began arriving on campus before 7 a.m. to set up their shops and participate in what has become the area's largest arts and crafts fair. Long before the official opening hour of 11 a.m., guests had begun pouring in from the parking lots, sampling a varied menu of exotic foods prepared by two dozen local chefs, and viewing art works by more than 60 craftsworkers from throughout the southern Puget Sound area.

The skirling of bagpipes played by the Olympia Highlanders marching band launched the day's entertainment, which featured more than 40 separate performing groups on three stages.

While dancers, martial artists, singers and modern fencing experts kept a "demonstration" stage busy, larger musical groups—including the Red Kelly/Don Chan

Roadhouse Jazz Ensemble, the Fort Steilacoom Community College Stage Band, and colorfully authentic troupes of Polynesian and Filipino performers from Seattle—kept the main stage and central campus plaza buzzing. High steppers from Tumwater High School marched throughout the campus, weaving their way through the crowds and up the four-story-high clock tower steps to become the first musical troupe to perform on campus at that altitude.

As the tantalizing scent of barbecued chicken (prepared by a stalwart crew of Evergreen alums) and Kalua pig (roasted underground by Hawaiian gourmets) drifted through campus, adults moved on to the third stage—full of entertainment in the Beer Garden, hidden away on the third floor patio of the College Activities Building and amply supplied with fermented sparkling waters. While they tapped their feet to the tunes of jazz, bluegrass, country and folk songs, Beer Gardeners gained an eagle's eye view of a daring quartet of skydivers from the Toledo Parachute Center who leaped out over the baseball diamond in the midst of a grudge match between the Daily Olympian batbusters and KGY radio's mighty mikes. The electronic media men and women blasted their way to an 11 to 10 victory with a smashing home run in the final inning which has yet to be reported on the sports pages of the capital city's only daily newspaper.

Across campus youngsters were treated to a series of four special "unbirthday parties," a tent filled with face-painting artists, a slate of games, free horseback rides, balloons and cartoons, a chance to meet a collection of costumed critters, including Winnie the Pooh and the Cat in the Hat, and their own special children's parade.

Athletes also had their chance to shine on Super Saturday. More than three dozen competitors ran in a 2.6-mile road race, while 60 wheel-riding racers maneuvered through the heart-stopping skateboard ramp competition, employees from Pacific Northwest Bell hosted their first frisbee golf tournament, and rappellers soared and danced (or, in some instances, crept) down the clock tower amidst applause and sometimes startled gasps.

Enriching the day's events were academic displays, a

Commencement speaker Jolene Unsoeld

Left to right: Neil Shamberg '80; Alumni Relations Coordinator Bonnie Marie; Janice Wood '76; current student Bruce Shamberg; Julie Grant '79, Kevin Thomas '79 (hand on Julie's shoulder); and Kelly McGrew '81 (hat).

balcony full of model railroad demonstrations, special art exhibits featuring works by photographers, fantasy illustrators and graduating seniors; two performances of a traditional European-style circus; and opportunities to peer into the future offered by handwriting analysts, aura readers, tarot card experts, palmists and Evergreen's resident dream analyst, Dr. Richard Jones.

New to the Super Saturday celebration this year were two brief but special ceremonies: presentation of the first Super Saturday Citizens of the Year Award to Hanna and Jess Spielholz of Olympia (see details in accompanying story), and drawing of a raffle ticket for a round-trip helicopter ride over the state's most active volcano, Mt. Saint Helens. The winning ticket, drawn Saturday afternoon, belonged to Herb Gelman, Tacoma member of the college's board of trustees. He promptly auctioned off his prize for $50 and donated the money to the Evergreen Foundation Scholarship Fund, which also received all proceeds from the raffle contest.

By day's end, the campus had welcomed more than 10,000 guests, the security force had directed traffic around lots that couldn't hold even one more vehicle, and the 20-member Super Saturday Committee had collapsed, like their information tent, into a satisfied heap.

But calm was not to remain in the heart of the mighty bivalves. For Sunday brought graduation and a celebration that drew an estimated 350 seniors, including dozens of them clad in caps and gowns, and hundreds of parents and friends.

Guest speaker Jolene Unsoeld, a widely respected citizen political activist in Washington and widow of Evergreen's popular mountain climbing philosopher, Dr. Willi Unsoeld, gained a standing ovation for her hard-hitting address, aimed at helping prepare seniors for "the agony and the ecstasy" of life after Evergreen.

"You aren't going to walk out of here and live happily ever after," Unsoeld told the Class of 1981. "Tomorrow will bring with it disappointments, sorrow and pain to mix with the hard work and job this life contains."

"But," she asserted, "this tattered old world needs more than ever... legions of young people to carry the banner.

"Now more than ever we need young people with vision, with a sense of hope...

"Young people with rational and clear thinking...

"And the ability to listen to the truth that underlies people's anguish, anger and confusion.

"It begins," she said, "with the 4,260 Evergreeners that have gone before you. It begins with the 604 of you," she declared, urging them to:

"Believe in your strength. Believe in your youth. Believe in this world's need for you.

"Learn to repeat endlessly to yourself 'It all depends on me. It all depends on us.'

"Make the most of yourself in this struggle. That's all there is of you.

"Bring on those giants," she concluded. "You can handle them."

Sharing the podium with Unsoeld were graduating seniors Elizabeth Springer, a Seattleite who at 66 was among this year's oldest graduates; Edna Harper, a 36-year old mother of five who has worked on Evergreen's staff for the past six years while attending classes; and Lyn Malofsky, a 22-year-old senior from Madison, Wisconsin, plus Alumni Association President Joe Dear, Evergreen President Dan Evans, and faculty anthropologist Dr. Mark Papworth.

The ceremony—and commencement weekend—concluded with what's become an Evergreen tradition—formation of a human ring comprised of graduating seniors and faculty members, joined hand in hand, circling parents and friends and sharing one final moment of celebration.

Hanna & Jess: Super Saturday Citizens of the Year

Jess and Hanna Spielholz have been active in Evergreen since before its doors opened nearly ten years ago. The dynamic Cooper Point couple—and their countless contributions to Evergreen—were honored this June when the two became the college's first Super Saturday Citizens of the Year.

Forced to move to Olympia "under duress" in 1962 when the courts ordered state employees to relocate from Seattle to the state capital, Hanna and Jess sorely missed the environment of their University of Washington neighborhood. They immediately endorsed the idea of opening a new state college in Olympia and were among the first supporters who gathered in the fall of 1970 to create the Evergreen College Community Organization (ECCO), a group dedicated to building bridges of understanding between the new school and its hometown.

"We felt Olympia needed the enrichment that hosting a college would give it," recalls Hanna. "But we sensed considerable community antagonism toward the idea and wanted to share with others our excitement about it."

Both were already heavily involved in the Olympia community: Hanna with the Women's Club, the League of Women Voters and the State Capitol Museum; Jess with his work as a physician for the State Department of Social and Health Services and his volunteer efforts for the Council on Aging, the American Cancer Society, the Fred Hutcheson Cancer Research Center, and the state Diabetes and Arthritis Associations. But those activities didn't stop them from contributing hours to aid the new college.

Since they first joined ECCO, Jess has twice served on the college faculty, Hanna has taken six classes, both have participated in countless seminars as what Jess jokingly calls "token old people," and they've helped ECCO host receptions and gourmet dinners, guide tours, stage lecture programs, conduct play reading groups, and in every conceivable way open lines of communication between the college and its neighbors.

"We've found it all stimulating and brain stretching," says Hanna, who spent much of the past year burning the lamplights late every night to meet the demands of her full-time academic program, "The Human Condition—Our Neolithic Roots," while Jess has served as president of both Morningside (a developmental center and workshop for handicapped adults) and the Thurston County Senior Center, chaired the Area Agency on Aging Advisory Board and continued to serve as a committee member for several other organizations.

When the two have a chance to get together, it's often at Evergreen, where both attend ECCO meetings and campus events in addition to their more academic roles. The campus, the two agree, "has filled a very special need in our lives.

"I believe there's a symbiotic need for relationships to develop between young and old," Jess explains. "What stands out in our minds is the continuing relationship we've had with students. We've never felt the age differential, and students and faculty have become friends who have enriched our lives with their openness and warmth."

Their fellow students, and members of the Super Saturday awards committee concur that the Spielholz duo has greatly enriched Evergreen, providing examples of how best to perform the roles of "aware citizens" about which the college's founding faculty and deans so frequently spoke.

Their role as models to faculty, students and friends of the campus will long be valued as highly as their more quantifiable contributions. And, their award will become an annual part of the Super Saturday tradition.

Address Correction Requested
Forwarding and Return
Postage Guaranteed

Evergreen Musical Show Touring Rural Communities

A three-member Evergreen faculty-staff team has hit the road this summer, taking with them a two-day presentation on "America's Music in Cultural Perspective."

The team, headed by faculty members Dr. Tom Foote and Dr. Charles Teske and assisted by recent graduate Marilynn Carlton, is taking to nine rural southwest Washington communities a production that offers a slide/tape show illustrating aspects of America's rich musical heritage, lectures developed during the past academic year as part of the America's Music academic program, and discussion sessions designed to involve participants in identifying and appreciating that which is distinctly American music.

The program opened July 1 in Morton and has been scheduled in Raymond, Quilcene, Shelton, Pacific Beach, Ocean Beach, Packwood, Lake Quinault and Castle Rock.

At each stop, the Evergreen trio is taking participants through a four-step review of American history, literature and music, beginning with the introduction of white settlers to this continent, the influence of African traditions in the United States, and an examination of American classical or "high-art" music. The sessions conclude with discussions to examine the views held by persons from other nations and cultures of American musical traditions.

The summer-long program has been funded by the Washington Commission for the Humanities through a $8,891 grant designed in part to "provide an informative and exciting cultural experience for those who do not have the benefit of reasonable proximity to a four-year college or university."

Trustee and athletics booster Robert Flowers hands over former trustee Hal Halvorson's $4,000 challenge check to athletics director Jan Lambertz.

Clambackers Meet Challenge

Last December former trustee Hal Halvorson of Spokane presented Evergreen with a special challenge: if the college could raise $4,000 for athletics, he would contribute another $4,000. The deadline: June 30.

"We knew we'd really have to work hard, but we accepted—and met—the challenge with enthusiasm," says Jan Lambertz, Evergreen's new director of athletics. "Over the past few months we've received an anonymous gift from a local corporation and many contributions from local athletics boosters and we've also had a couple of successful fund raisers, such as the May 9 Run for Your Mom."

Evergreen's athletics program, launched in the fall of 1979, now boasts men's and women's teams in soccer, swimming, cross-country running and tennis. Sailing and club-level crew are scheduled to be phased in during 1981-82.

"None of our present sports are big revenue-producers," explains Lambertz. "And, we're not at the point yet where we have large crowds of spectators. We're still working on becoming more visible."

During the past legislative session, Evergreen received capital funding to complete its soccer fields and plan a new gymnasium complex. These additional facilities will help enhance Evergreen's total recreation and athletics program.

Adds Lambertz: "We're doing athletics the Evergreen way and we're especially grateful to trustee Halvorson for making it possible."

