Professor David McLellan of the University of Kent at Canterbury, England will deliver a public lecture on "Karl Marx: The Vicissitudes of a Reputation," December 12 at 4 p.m. in Lecture Hall One at The Evergreen State College.

Professor McLellan, an internationally renowned Marx Scholar who has recently written the most recent biography of Marx in English, says he will "attempt to trace the history of what people have thought important in Marx over the last 100 years, explain why the emphasis has changed and adjudicate between competing interpretations."

His afternoon address is free and open to the public.
