TRUSTEES GIVE "GO-AHEAD" FOR THE PAPER, ALTER MASTER HOUSING PLAN

A student newspaper may hit the presses by the beginning of Spring Quarter, thanks to action by Evergreen's Board of Trustees last week. The trustees approved creation of a Board of Publications which, when appointed, will select a student editor and begin production of The Paper, which has been out of circulation since last June.

The Board adopted a governance policy for The Paper which President Charles J. McCann said, "places a lot of responsibility in the editorship." Drafted by a cross-section of the campus community, the newspaper's governance policy calls for creation of a five-member board composed of two students selected at random by computer, two faculty or staff members and a professional journalist to be appointed by the president.

In other business, the Board voted to modify the college's master plan for additional on-campus housing. The plan originally called for construction of eight new units by fall of 1974 to house an additional 425 students. Because of a reduction in enrollment projections and a freeze on federal subsidies from the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the college board voted to cut back the number of structures from eight to five and reduce the number of accommodations from 425 beds to 300. The Board also approved the sale of $3,072,000 in bonds to finance the proposed new structures.

The board also authorized the sale of $2,625,000 in bonds to finance an addition to the College Activities Building. The project is scheduled for completion by fall of 1975.

WANT TO WORK ON THE PAPER?

Students interested in either working on The Paper or in being a member of the Publications Board can sign up immediately in the Information Center. Two student members of the Pub Board will be selected by computer from a list of those interested. They must sign up by Feb. 20. There is no sign-up deadline for those interested in working on The Paper.

TWO NEW DEANS SOUGHT: CADWALLADER AND SOULE ROTATING INTO FACULTY

A Disappearing Task Force met yesterday (Feb. 14) to begin the search for a new academic dean to fill the spot currently held by Merv Cadwallader and for a new associate dean replacing Oscar Soule.

In a letter to faculty, staff and students, Provost Ed Kormondy announced "with utmost of reluctance and very deep personal regret" that Cadwallader had elected to move into a faculty position after spending three years as a dean. Soule, who began his associate deanship last fall, has decided to return to the faculty.

Members of the 12-person DTF, who will receive nominations and applications from all members of the Evergreen community until Feb. 21 include the four current deans (Cadwallader, Soule, Don Humphrey and Charles Teske), five faculty (Nancy Allen, Jose Arguelles, Betty Estes, Will Humphreys and Sid White), two staff members (Vivian Marcy and Lem Stepherson), and one student (David Shepard).

Those eligible for consideration must be faculty members. Kormondy explained:

"Although developments in future years may dictate otherwise, the needs for the immediate future are such that the eligibility requirements for the positions of Dean and Associate Dean is that the nominee be a person who is or has been a Member of the Faculty at Evergreen and who is or has been engaged in a Coordinated Studies program."

Each applicant or nominee for a deanship will be asked to prepare a public qualifications folder and make it available to all interested persons from Feb. 21 to Mar. 7. The DTF will analyze all information on the various candidates for two weeks and report to Kormondy on Mar. 14 with a non-prioritized list of the top three candidates for each position. Kormondy plans to announce appointment of the new dean and associate dean by Mar. 21.

- Fridays, 6:30 p.m., Sounding Board (reading of minutes, taped comments, etc.)
- Sundays, 5 p.m., Citizens Conference on Washington State Legislature

Daily specials:

- People Information Service, 8:25 a.m., 6 and 9:55 p.m.
- News, 6 p.m.
- Classical Music, 6 to 8:30 a.m.
- Open Forum, 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. (Free time to share ideas, play special requests, etc.)

SEED GRANT PROGRAM APPROVED BY TRUSTEES

A program to provide funds for faculty members to develop grant proposals and "acquire resources not accessible through regular budgetary channels" was approved by the Board of Trustees at its February meeting. Provost Ed Kormondy said the Seed Grants program would provide up to two months summer salary for three to five members of the faculty or staff for "the express purpose of developing proposals for submission to appropriate granting agencies."

The program, which will also "encourage continued professional development of faculty and staff," will provide an allotment of up to $500 to recipients for "such travel, library research, computer studies, part-time student aid, etc., as warranted to increase the likelihood of the developed proposals success," Kormondy explained.

Grant proposals must be submitted to a Disappearing Task Force by Mar. 15. The DTF, composed of three faculty, three staff and three students, will present its findings to President Charles J. McCann by Mar. 25 and announcements of awards will be made by Apr. 1.

CITIZENS ACTION NETWORK TO PUBLISH WEEKLY REPORT

A weekly report on what's happening in the legislature --- as seen through the eyes of more than a dozen students enrolled in the Citizens Action Network Group study contract --- may be off the presses Feb. 20. Coordinated by Bob Butts and Will Rice, the weekly sheet "will aim at providing a rundown on committee hearings, status of key bills and other legislative activities," Butts reported. Copies of the new report will be available on Tuesday in the CAN headquarters (room 3502A of the Library) and through the Campus Mail Service.

CRAFTS ON EXHIBIT IN LIBRARY

A cluster of one-man exhibits from Seattle's Henry Gallery are now on display in the main foyer of the Library. Entitled "Master Crafts: Northwest Award Winners," the show includes work by four Northwest artists, and is an outgrowth of the 1971 competitive Northwest Craftsmen's show. Included in the show are jewelry done by Ramona Solberg, an associate professor at the University of Washington; weaving done by W. Ron Crosier, chairman of the art department of Adams High School in Portland, Oregon; sculpture by Richard Marquis, a Seattleite, and hand-blown glass and sculpture by Patrick McCormick, a faculty member of Western Washington State College. The show will remain on exhibit through Mar. 2.

LEGISLATIVE INTERNS FIND LEARNING "MORE THAN A FULL-TIME JOB"

With more than a month's experience on the hill, three legislative interns from Evergreen --- Marcella Wing, Dave Reeder and Mike Harding --- reported they're "learning much more about the legislative process than we ever could have in the classroom." But, they agree it takes more than 40 hours a week to do it.

Ms. Wing, a 21-year-old Renton High School graduate assigned to Rep. Tom Swayze, a Gig Harbor Republican, said the most impressive point about the session is the interaction among all its elements. "Nothing any one person does here can be accomplished without affecting someone else," she said. "You have to be continually aware that what you do ties in directly with what at least one --- but often several other people --- are doing."

Discovering the difficulties of passing environmental legislation is 20-year-old Dave Reeder of Mesa, Arizona, who has been assigned to Rep. John Martinis, an Everett Democrat. "I've been very concerned about environmental legislation for years and could not understand why it was so difficult to get through," Reeder said. "Now I'm beginning to realize that passage of environmental legislation depends primarily on the political processes. There's just so much more to it than I suspected."

The third Evergreen intern, Mike Harding, is working closely with Rep. Albert Bauer, a Vancouver Democrat who has known Harding for several years. Somewhat skeptical of bureaucracies at the outset of his internship, Harding said he's been amazed at how efficient a system the legislature is. "You ask for information here and you get it --- immediately," he said.

All three of the students have widely varying tasks each day --- from research to letter writing, attending committee hearings to discussing problems with their representatives. They voice a uniform gratitude for their access to "what's really happening," and for their opportunities for input into the legislature.

In addition to their work with legislators, the three interns and about a dozen other Evergreen students who are working on the hill meet weekly with Faculty Member Matthew Smith to share their experiences. "The other interns are working with lobbyists, governmental agencies and some of the state offices," Smith said. "Putting all the students together, we have just about every aspect of the State Legislature covered. This means the students can really get a complete picture of what's going on when they meet for their weekly seminars."

EVERGREENERS IN THE NEWS

New to the staff this past month are Jeannie Chandler, secretary; William Hemsher, janitor; Sharon Landis, storekeeper; Fred Lentz, engineer; Thomas Quinn, janitor; Candace Roth, clerk typist; and Carole Sadler, janitor.

Faculty Member Bill Winden and his wife, Joan, traveled to the Tri-Cities this week to perform solos in Verdi's "Requiem" with the Mid Columbia Symphony. The two were scheduled to perform along with other soloists from the Seattle Opera.

EVERGREEN SYMPOSIUM: GET 4 FOR PRICE OF 3

A chance to save 25¢ per issue of the Evergreen Symposium is being offered now to potential subscribers. Associate Editor and Faculty Member Sid White said the magazine which costs $1 per issue, is available at a subscription rate of four issues for $3.

"We sold out our first issue and we encourage persons to take advantage of the special rate," he said. Persons interested in doing so, can send checks to the Evergreen Symposium, care of its editors, Room 2114 of the Library. The next issue, which will focus on "The Student at Evergreen," will be out Mar. 1. The editors reported they've had "a very good response" from persons planning to contribute articles and essays to the second issue.

SPORTS HIGHLIGHTS

The Evergreen Bowling League hit the lanes Feb. 7 when six three-member teams began competition at Westside Lanes. Coordinated by Tom Allen, the co-ed teams will compete every Wednesday at 9 p.m. Participants pay $1.75 for three games. Cost includes their shoes.

...A ping pong tournament has been set for Feb. 21 at noon in the main lobby of the College Activities Building. Participants should sign up by 11 a.m. that day.

...Intermural basketball, sponsored by the Lacey Park Department, will see Evergreen face Wilson's team Feb. 19 at 7:45 p.m. in the Old Lacey Gym. Feb. 21 the Evergreen hoopsters will meet Pease Building players at 7:45 p.m. in the same gym. Admission to the games is free.

...Championships for three-on-three basketball have been slated for Mar. 1 at 7 p.m. in the Steam Plant Gym. Allen reported there was no basketball this week, but that play would resume Feb. 20.

...Volleyball championships have also been scheduled --- for Mar. 6 at 7:30 p.m. in the Steam Plant Gym.

OPEN ENROLLMENT FOR INSURANCE PROGRAMS FEB. 15-28

An open enrollment period for four insurance companies will begin Feb. 15 for Evergreen employees. Interested persons can sign up for Crown Life Insurance, for accidental death and dismemberment coverage from the Insurance Company of North America, for major medical with Northwest Medical, or for major medical and straight benefit coverage from Blue Cross. Union Mutual, which provides long-term disability coverage, is also opening its enrollment for the same two-week period, but any coverage with that company is subject to approval by the home office. Coverage for the other four companies will be effective Apr. 1. Thurston County Medical and Group Health have closed their enrollment periods.

LOST ANYTHING? CHECK WITH SECURITY OR THE INFORMATION CENTER

Numerous "found" items are showing up in the Security Office (Building 201) and the Information Center. Watches, rings, clothing, books --- all manner of things --- are lying unclaimed, according to Security Officer Gary Russell, who strongly suggested Evergreeners check for any items they may be missing.

FOLK FESTIVAL COMING

A three-day folk dance festival is being planned for Mar. 2, 3 and 4. Highlights of the festival will include a dance Mar. 2, workshops all day Mar. 3 and 4, and a pot-luck dinner, exhibitions and festival --- complete with costumes --- Mar. 3. Exact times and places have not yet been set. Interested persons are urged to contact Dina Hartzell or Mary McCauley in Room 305 of the College Activities Building (phone 753-3194). Cost of the festival will be 75¢ per event, or $3.75 for the weekend.

WIEDEMANN REPORTS FROM AUSTRALIAN BUSH

Faculty Member Al Wiedemann reports 100° weather and "an astounding variety of bird-life..." in his travels throughout Australia. Finding his trip a "delightful way to spend a Washington Winter," Wiedemann wrote Information Services Director Dick Nichols that he had just completed a 10-day road tour of research sites in the deserts around Alice Springs and a week on a large farm in the foothills of the Australian Alps in the far southeastern part of the country where "drought conditions are serious and many farmers had already left the land." Wiedemann headed for Indonesia last week and was scheduled to deliver a speech on "New Trends in the Teaching of Undergraduate Biology in the USA" to faculty of the Bogor Institute of Agriculture.
