FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

April 18, 1973

Prospective students, their parents, high school and college teachers, principals and counselors, and members of the general public in King County are invited to attend a special get-acquainted session with representatives of The Evergreen State College April 25 at University Towers, in Seattle's University District. The program, entitled "The Evergreen State College Preview", will begin at 7:30 p.m.

The preview, sponsored by Evergreen's Office of Admissions, is a part of a Spring campaign to take the new college to the people in various areas of Washington, according to Faculty Member Nancy Taylor, who is coordinating the information effort.

Evergreen representatives at the preview will include faculty members, students, and staff from admissions and other campus service offices.

"Our basic idea is to share information with high school and community college students, teachers, and counselors; parents; and members of the general public," Ms. Taylor said. "We'll be discussing Evergreen's philosophy, our current and future programs and activities, the status of our 1973-75 biennium budget request to the Legislature, as well as such services as financial aid, placement, Cooperative Education internships, counseling, and admissions procedures."

"The meeting will be informal and there will be ample time for everyone to have questions answered concerning all areas of campus life at Evergreen," Ms. Taylor said.

Refreshments will be served.

Other Evergreen previews will be presented later in Olympia, Vancouver, and Spokane.
