Registration for Winter Quarter part-time studies programs at The Evergreen State College will begin the evening of December 8, according to Registrar Walker Allen.

Instructors for the 27 programs open to residents of Evergreen's immediate service area will be on hand the first night of registration to explain their offerings and give prospective students complete details about class times, dates, and locations.

Initial registration activities will occur from 6:00 to 8:00 p.m. December 8 in Room 110 of the College Activities Building. Registration will continue in the Registrar's Office, Seminar Building, from 8:00-11:45 a.m. and 1:00-5:00 p.m. December 9-12 and December 15-19.

Following the holiday season break, part-time studies registration will resume January 5 with a 6:00-8:00 p.m. session in Room 110 of the Activities Building. Faculty again will be available to give program details. Registration will continue January 6-9 in the Registrar's Office during daytime hours.

Winter Quarter classes begin January 5 and run through March 19.

Child care services will be available on campus at a nominal cost for part-time students, with children between the ages of two and eight accepted. Advance registration--prior to the start of classes--is required and should be accomplished while signing up for academic programs.

Allen says those who are just starting part-time studies at Evergreen should enroll as Special Students--those taking academic work for credit though not seeking a degree. "This allows registration without making formal application, supplying transcripts, or paying application and advance deposit fees", he adds. "Credit earned, of course, is applicable to a degree should a person later wish to become a part-time continuing student. At that point, the student would undergo formal admissions processing."
