...DARK OF THE MOON PREMIERE FEB. 28...Four afternoon and evening performances of "Dark of the Moon," the major Winter Quarter dramatic production by the Evergreen Group Contract in Drama and Theater Arts, are scheduled for Feb. 28 through Mar. 3. Performances will be held at 2 and 8 p.m. on the fourth floor of the Evans Library. Admission is free and the public is invited. Invitations to attend the matinee performances have been sent to all local area high school drama departments, according to Faculty Member Ainara Wilder, who is directing the production. Groups interested in attending the afternoon performances should make reservations by calling Ms. Wilder's office, 753-3972.

...EVERGREEN INTERN CAPTAINS SEATTLE'S NEWEST MUSEUM, OLDEST SHIP...The last wooden sailing vessel in Seattle is becoming the city's first maritime museum. At the helm of the restoration crew is Mary Stiles of Pasco, a petite blonde second year student intern at Evergreen. Acting as curator of Northwest Seaport --- a non-profit organization which is establishing the lumber schooner Wawona as an historical museum --- Ms. Stiles is working under the direction of the organization's president Robert Ashley and Evergreen Faculty Member Mary Ellen Hillaire. She spends about 30 hours each week handling a wide variety of duties in connection with her unique academic program.

"We're hoping to have the ship open on the Seattle waterfront by May," she said. "We are currently restoring the old ship, recruiting volunteer work parties, designing displays, researching specimens and organizing fund drives, as well as keeping up with all the duties associated with operating an office."

...SIMULATION/COMPUTER WORKSHOP ON CAMPUS MAR. 2...An all-day conference to examine the use of models and computers as tools for understanding complex environmental interaction will be held on the Evergreen campus Mar. 2. Sponsored by Evergreen and the Northwest Regional Council of Simulation Councils, Inc., the conference will begin at 9 a.m. in Lecture Hall One. Purpose of the day-long meeting is to "talk about the use of computers as simulation tools," Faculty Member Fred Tabbutt said. "We want to use layman's language to present a representative cross section of simulation environmental studies now being undertaken throughout the Pacific Northwest."

Representatives of five universities and Battelle Northwest will present papers ranging from "complex team projects to modest undergraduate efforts," Tabbutt said. Admission is $1 for non-students. Interested persons may contact Tabbutt at 753-3945.

...FACULTY MEMBER SELECTED TO REPRESENT STATE DEPARTMENT ON THREE CONTINENTS...Faculty Member Chuck Nisbet is one of two academicians selected from throughout the United States to represent the State Department in a spring tour of three continents. Nisbet, an economist, is scheduled to leave for Costa Rica Mar. 4 to begin a trip which will take him to Ecuador, Philippines, Bangladesh, Turkey, Kenya, Tanzania, Ivory Coast, Nigeria and Ghana.

The Evergreen instructor was selected for the trip by the Agency for International Development (AID), a branch of the State Department. AID promotes development in third world or underdeveloped countries. Nisbet's task will be to deliver and explain recently-completed AID research to governmental officials and technologists. The research is the result of an annual review by AID of its programs relating to small-farmer development, Nisbet said. He has studied small-farmer development in Latin American for the past eight years.

Nisbet is currently part of an Evergreen faculty team directing the American Studies Coordinated Studies program. During his absence, Paul Wolman, an historian from the University of Buffalo who is now living in Olympia, will serve as a visiting faculty member in the study program.
