Nine professionals from the fields of Arts and Communications will participate in an all day Job and Graduate Information program at The Evergreen State College May 4.

The program, sponsored by the Office of Career Planning and Placement, gives Evergreen students an opportunity to discuss career possibilities in their fields of interest and to conduct personal interviews with the professional representatives.

Participating in the Wednesday program will be Mary Frye, community arts coordinator for the Washington State Arts Commission; Kari Steinke, Olympia modern dance instructor; John Watson, director of programming for Tacoma's KCPQ television; Hilda Bryant, public affairs reporter for the Seattle Post Intelligencer; Frank Wetzel, executive editor of the Bellevue American; Andrew Keating and Lewis Simpson, Seattle artists; Robert Sitton, director of the Northwest Film Study Center for the Portland Art Museum; and Roy Halverson, professor of journalism at the University of Oregon.
