he wanted to be a disk jockey

BUT HARVEY ROBERTS IS A COP AND HE LOVES IT

He wanted to be a radio disk jockey, but was afraid to admit it to his parents. So he enrolled in a police science class as a cover-up for his real career goal. A year later, clad in police blues, he's patrolling the beats with Olympia City Police 40 hours a week and hoping to become a full-time policeman following his graduation from Evergreen.

Twenty-year-old Harvey Roberts, a third year Tacoma student, began his year-long internship with OPD last fall. He wanted to gain an understanding of police and law law enforcement --- not just theory, but a practical, realistic view of the field.

Working closely with Police Lt. Bill Remsen, his off-campus supervisor, Roberts said he's found police work "a frustrating experience at times --- but filled with a sense of accomplishment."

CAN'T ALWAYS BE JUST AND IT'S VERY SAD

"There's so many times when you come up against a situation where you have to make a decision that may not be just," he said. "It's legal and it's what has to be. But sometimes it's not really fair and it's very sad."

Viewing his experiences realistically, Roberts is most impressed with "the feeling that you're not just doing a job of enforcing law...but you're actually doing something that's good and worthwhile." The exciting part of the job is "constantly mixed in with the routine," he said. Expressing obvious enthusiasm for the job, Roberts said he finds "it exciting to talk with a kid on the street and find out I can help him just by talking to him. It's exciting to check doors at night and find them all locked."

The 1970 graduate of Tacoma's Franklin Pierce High School said he's been fully accepted by the officers on duty and has been allowed to experience the whole range of police work --- from administrative paperwork to arrests, from riding in patrol cars to breaking the news of a husband's death to a new widow.

OPD'S FIRST STUDENT INTERN IS "WORKING OUT WELL"

Lt. Remsen said Roberts is the police department's first student intern: "He's working out very well. Because of him, we're exploring the possibility of having more interns --- both from Evergreen and other colleges."

The officers "enjoy having Roberts working with them," Remsen said. "It gives them a chance to do some instructing at the working level --- and helps them both out."

The internship experience, sponsored through Evergreen's Office of Cooperative Education, is contracted through the college's Security Supervisor Rod Marrom. Marrom, who has 20 years of police experience, says he's "mighty impressed" with Roberts and has high hopes for him as a professional lawman.

"He's one of the most outstanding students I've ever working with and I think he's opened up tremendous possibilities for positive interaction between the college and the Olympia Police Department," Marrom said.

LOTS OF BOOKWORK REQUIRED

Supplementing his practical experience with "lots of bookwork," Roberts has been reading about all areas of law enforcement --- including police organization, community relations, management and recent development in criminal justice. He and his intern sponsors feel he'll be well prepared for a police career when he graduates next June, but he may end up two inches short of his goal.

"I'm only 5'6" tall and many departments have a minimum 5'8" requirement," Roberts said. But with his determination and the support of those who've worked with him, few doubt that the young Tacoman will stand tall in a police uniform within days of graduation.

HUMAN INTEREST, HARD NEWS --- POSITIVE STORY IDEAS WANTED

With a campus of more than 2,000 folks, it's often times difficult to keep in touch with all that's happening, to find and focus on the positive stories which tell the real Evergreen story.

Faculty, staff and students all have their own story of Evergreen. Let each of you share those ideas with the Office of College Relations. It's our job to tell the "outside" world what's happening here --- how we are spending the taxpayers' dollars for the benefit of the society into which our students will emerge. If you have a positive view of Evergreen --- a feature story on one student, one faculty or staff member, or even one academic program, contact Dick Nichols, Director of Information Services or Judy Prentice, Information Officer (Library 3114 or 753-3125).

Help us tell the Evergreen story.

SMITH'S REMINDER: STUDENTS MUST BE REGISTERED BY MAR. 16

All students must complete Spring Quarter registration and payment of fees by 5 p.m. March 16, according to Registrar Perrin Smith. "This is an absolute deadline and failure to register and pay fees by that deadline entails loss of place at Evergreen," Smith said.

Students have already received registration and fee payment materials in the mail, and if they have not processed the materials by Mar. 16, their registration will not be permitted. Their advance deposits will be forfeit and re-admission will be achieved only through reapplication.

Because registration is done by mail, Smith reminded students of the importance of keeping current and "thoroughly useable" addresses filed with his office.

COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE TOPIC OF SYMPOSIUM TONIGHT

A panel of six medical experts will discuss "Comprehensive Medical Care: Methods of Financing Care for All and Delivering Services to All" in a public symposium tonight (Mar.8) at 7 p.m. in Lecture Hall One.

The panelists, whose visit is sponsored by the Evergreen Forensics Association, are: Betsy Diffendal, former Washington, D.C. consultant for health maintenance organizations; Paul Dygert, M.D., president-elect of the Washington State Medical Association; Alex Gerber, M.D., noted author and chief surgeon of a California Group Health Clinic; Gil Omenn, M.D., University of Washington Medical School authority; Ed Ross, a representative from the Region Ten Office of Health, Education and Welfare, and Peter West, M.D., from the Puget Sound Group Health Cooperative in Olympia.

The three-hour symposium will include a question and answer period. The public is invited and admission is free.

The symposium will kick off a two-day forensics tournament which begins at Evergreen tomorrow (Mar. 9). Collegiate debaters from throughout the Pacific Northwest and California are expected to attend. The public is also invited to the debate tournament which will be held throughout the campus beginning at 8:30 a.m. Mar. 9.

PROGRAM SELECTIONS MADE, FACULTY ASSIGNED FOR 73-74 ACADEMIC YEAR

Program assignments for the 1973-74 academic year were announced Mar. 5 by Academic Dean Merv Cadwallader. Six basic Coordinated Studies programs are planned. They include Nature and Society, to be coordinated by Jeanne Hahn; Human Ecology, coordinated by Oscar Soule; Man and Nature by Siegfried Kutter; Learning About Learning, by Charles Lyons; Individual and Society by Maxine Minns, and Form and Function by Stan Klyn.

Two basic and advanced Coordinated Studies programs will also be offered: Athens and America, coordinated by Cadwallader; and Words and Images, coordinated by Peter Elbow.

Advanced Coordinated Studies programs include six offerings: Matter and Motion, coordinated by Al Leisenring; Ecology of Pollution, coordinated by Steve Herman; Paradox of Power, coordinated by Beryl Crowe; Freud and Jung, coordinated by Betty Estes; Dreams and Poetry, coordinated by Leo Daugherty; and America's Music, coordinated by

William Winden.

Fifteen faculty members have been assigned to Group Contracts in media, film, The Classics, Women in Literature, mental health, economics, aesthetics, molecular biology, Evergreen Environment III, Japan and the West, seacoast, marine studies, research, basic skills, and economics and history. Nineteen faculty are assigned to individual contracts.

HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS ATTEND CONFERENCE

Seniors from Tacoma, Chehalis, Centralia and four Olympia-area high schools attended a conference on international affairs at Evergreen this week. Sponsored by the Japan and the West academic study group, the program focused on Japan's role as a world power, on her economic relationships with Pacific Coast states and her growing ecological problems.

PUB BOARD REQUESTS APPLICATIONS FOR STUDENT EDITOR BY MARCH 13

The Evergreen Board of Publications has issued a call for applications from all students interested in the editorship of The Paper. Applications must be in Sally Hunter's office (room 1601 of the Library) by 5 p.m. Mar. 13 and should include: a statement of the applicant's proposed editorial policy, a resume of his or her experiences and qualifications, notice of any external commitments the student may have which would interfere with the duties of the editor, a table of organization for The Paper staff, a proposed budget for Spring Quarter, and a nomination for the position of business manager.

Student Greg Jones was selected as chairman of the Publications Board and Information Officer Judy Prentice was appointed executive secretary. The Board also offered general guidelines for The Paper. It will be an eight-page tabloid paper, which will be published eight-to-ten times during the quarter.

The Board will convene in closed session beginning at 10 a.m. Mar. 14 in Library room 1601 to review applications for editor. Interviews of applicants will begin at 1:30 p.m. and final selection of the editor is expected by the end of the working day. The Board will convene in open session beginning at 10 a.m. Mar. 15 in the Dean's Lobby. Key agenda items are expected to be formulation of a budget and selection of a business manager, who will be named at the recommendation of the editor.

ELEMENTARY ART TO BE DISPLAYED IN THE GALLERY

Art works by children in 13 Olympia-area elementary schools will be exhibited in Evergreen's fourth floor library art gallery beginning Mar. 16. The exhibit, which will be on display for a month, will include works from both Tumwater and Olympia schools. Eve Shaw, an Evergreen student in the Image and Idea Coordinated Studies program, is organizing the show, which is sponsored by the Evergreen Visual Environmental Board.

GRADUATE STIPEND AWARDED TO ROSENBAUM

Arthur Rosenbaum of Seattle, a fourth-year student at Evergreen, has been awarded a $4,000 scholarship to Bank Street School in New York City, one of the oldest graduate schools in the country. Bank Street School is described by Rosenbaum's faculty sponsor, Ted Gerstl, as "one of the finest graduate schools in education and one of the more progressive schools in the nation."

Rosenbaum, who will graduate in June, will pursue a master of arts in education at the New York school. A transfer from the University of Washington, Rosenbaum has studied philosophy at Evergreen. He also spent three months in Israel last year studying passivism and Judaism and prepared a multi-media presentation on his stay in Israel and his tour of European concentration camps.

EVERGREENERS EXHIBIT PHOTOS IN SEATTLE.

A group of 15 students from the Image and Idea Coordinated Studies program opened a month-long exhibit of some 40 black and white photos in the Salad Gallery in Seattle Mar. 4. The exhibit, compiled under the direction of Faculty Member Kirk Thompson, was "done in the spirit of showing interesting photos to look at, not on any one theme," according to Jack Slagle, a Republic, Wash. student who coordinated the show.

SPECIAL DRAMATIC EVENTS SLATED

Two drama specials are coming to Evergreen next week. The first, scheduled for Mar. 13 at 4:30 p.m. in the fourth floor cafeteria of the Library, will be a pantomine presentation by drama students from Olympia High School. According to an impromptu review by Faculty Member Willi Unsoeld, the pantomine is "excellent and really holds your attention." All Evergreeners are welcome.

Also scheduled is a dramatic reading by students in the Modular Science Coordinated Studies program. The reading of "Antigone" by Sophocles is scheduled for 10 a.m. in Lecture Hall Three. It will be performed by students in a core seminar directed by Faculty Member Jacob Romero. A second reading of "Antigone", this time written by Anouilh, is scheduled for Mar. 21 at 10 a.m. in Lecture Hall Three by the seminar directed by Faculty Member Byron Youtz. Admission to all three specials is free, and everyone is invited.

STEILBERG NAMED TO REPRESENT EVERGREEN IN NATIONAL ASSOCIATION

Pete Steilberg, director of recreation and campus activities, has been chosen to represent Evergreen in the Association of College Unions-International, one of the oldest intercollegiate associations in higher education. Evergreen recently joined the association, which was founded in 1914. The association has more than 900 member colleges and was organized to assist college unions in studying and improving their services and activities programs.

ORIGINAL LYRICS SOUGHT

An Evergreen student and member of the soft rock trio The Fleetwoods is seeking original songs for recording by the Olympia singers. Gretchen Matzen, who said the group has a pair of one-million sellers to its credit, is seeking something "perhaps in the style of Bread, The Carpenters or Carole King...whatever's happening or about to happen." Composers can contact Ms. Matzen through the offices of Faculty Members Cruz Esquivel and Don Chan, or visit her in the fourth floor of the Library from 1:30 to 2:30 Tuesday and Thursday afternoons.

STUDENT NAMED REPRESENTATIVE OF TWO CONSERVATION ORGANIZATIONS

Roger Mellen, a member of the Wilderness and Consciousness Group Contract, has been named acting Northwest Representative for the Sierra Club and the Federation of Western Outdoor Clubs. Mellen replaces Brock Evans, who has become Washington D.C. representative for the Sierra Club and F.W.O.C. Mellen's appointment will be effective until a permanent representative is found later this spring or summer. He has studied conservation at the University of Oregon for four years and has been an Evergreener since last fall.

CAMPUS PHONES WILL BE CHANGED IN JULY

All campus telephone numbers will be changed on or about July 15, Director of Business Services Ron Hoffman reports. Sometime this spring the Evergreen Office of Pacific Northwest Bell Telephone Company will be completed at the intersections of Adams and Overhulse Roads. Once the new office is complete a new telephone system will go into operation. The main campus number will become 866-6000, and all college phones will bear the same prefix and will be in the 6000 series of numbers. Hoffman says he will publish a list of all the new numbers "in the near future."

SMORGASBORD OF ENTERTAINMENT SLATED FOR MONDAY NIGHT

Students from the Sound and Music section of the Image and Idea Coordinated Studies Program and from the group contract in dance will join forces Monday (Mar. 12) at 8 p.m. in the fourth floor cafeteria to present a concert of readings, music and dance. Coordinated by Faculty Members Bud Johanson and William Winden, the performance will include a reading of "The Londoner", a play by Dylan Thomas, a guitar duet, original songs performed by their composers, dances and a variety of electronic music. The concert is free and open to the public.
