Portland puppeteers, a Health Fair and May Festival and an all-day Black education program are on tap this week at Evergreen.

Bob and Jennifer Williams, Portland puppeteers and graduates of Olympia High School, will present a play, "The Serpent King and the Throne of Light," on campus tonight (Monday) at 8 in the Library.

May Day will be celebrated Tuesday with an all-day Health Fair which begins at 9 a.m. Displays and demonstrations by more than 20 local health organizations will be featured, and free health checks and immunizations will be available. Spring sports contests will also be held. Admission and parking are free on Tuesday.

Friday, a nationally known sociologist, Harry Edwards, will discuss black student movements at 1 o'clock in Lecture Hall One. Members of the Ujamaa Society, Evergreen's black student group, will present poetry and dances at noon in the College Activities Building. They will also stage a play, "Day of Absence," at 3 p.m. in Lecture Hall Three.

Friday evening, thespians from Olympic Community College in Bremerton will stage three one-act plays by Edward Albee beginning at 8 p.m. in the fourth floor cafeteria of the Library.

Admission to all events is free and the public is cordially invited.
