second evergreener to win

SIMS AWARDED NEW YORK URBAN FELLOWSHIP

Rob Sims, an Evergreen junior, is one of 20 students from throughout the United States to receive a $4,000 award in the City of New York's Annual Urban Fellowship Program. Sims, a Beaverton, Oregon High School graduate, competed for the honor with more than 300 applicants from colleges, universities and graduate schools throughout the nation. He will begin his nine-month internship in the office of New York City Mayor Abraham Beame in September.

The New York City Urban Fellowship, the first of its kind in the country, is administered by the mayor's office of administration. Students selected are provided with responsibilities in administrative problem-solving, research, policy planning and related management areas. Sims is the second Evergreen student in two years to win the national award. Teresa Baldwin, a Vancouver student who will graduate in June, won the fellowship last Spring and has participated in the program during the past academic year.

Like Ms. Baldwin, Sims will receive full academic credit from Evergreen for his internship. He will be sponsored by a member of the college's Contracted Studies faculty through the Office of Cooperative Education, which coordinated the internship program at Evergreen.

CO-OP SPONSORS ALL-DAY WORKSHOP AT EVERGREEN MAY 17

An all-day Cooperative Education Workshop will bring field student internship supervisors from throughout the State of Washington to Evergreen May 17. Featured speaker for the all-day meeting will be State Representative John Bagnariol, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. The Seattle Democrat will address a noon luncheon for the field supervisors, who sponsor and oversee the work of Evergreen students placed in practical work and study internships. Supervisors represent the general areas of business, industry, government, social service agencies and education.

Four field supervisors will participate in a morning panel discussion on "The Employers' Point of View." Panelists include Bob Morse, of Allied Data of Olympia, Harry Brunson of the Pierce County Assessor's Office, Ruthe Salzer of the Bank of Olympia, and Larry Yok, administrative assistant for the City of Olympia. Their panel is part of the morning welcoming activities, which begin at 9:45 in the multi-purpose room of the College Recreation Center.

Field supervisors will also be invited to select two of six workshops scheduled from 11 a.m. to noon and 2 to 3 p.m. Workshops and their discussion leaders include: "Introduction to the Career Learning Program," led by Co-op Coordinator Judy Dresser and Placement Counselor Gail Martin; "An Orientation to Cooperative Education at Evergreen," led by assistant co-op coordinator Dan Swecker; "Co-op for Non-Whites," directed by Faculty Member Maxine Mimms; "Co-op Ed and the 1974-75 Curriculum," by Provost Edward J. Kormondy; "Developing a Co-op Program in Your Organization," by Milt Martin, assistant director of the Interagency Committee for Outdoor Recreation; and "Continuing Education Through Co-op," by Evergreen Academic Dean Charles Teske.

The conference will conclude with a large-group discussion of the day's activities.

EVERGREENERS DESIGN TUMWATER PARKS AND RECREATION PROGRAM

The Tumwater City Council this week approved allocation of $4,500 to launch a summer parks and recreation program designed by two Evergreen students who also will coordinate the actual operation. The students --- Randy Pendergrass of Kingston, Washington, and Barney Rapp of Longview --- have spent most of Spring Quarter as interns working with city officials, the Parks Board, Tumwater School District, and the Tumwater Timberland Library to develop a comprehensive ten-week program basically aimed at youngsters between the ages of five and 15. The program approved by the City Council this week and scheduled for review by the School Board next week calls for a mixture of games, organized sports, crafts, reading, hiking and day camping by utilizing such community facilities in Tumwater as school grounds, classrooms, and gymnasiums, as well as parks and recreation areas and the public library.

The two students, working closely with Tumwater Parks Superintendent Jim Brown, took the summer program idea from scratch, developed sets of alternatives (including costs), coordinated their efforts with various public officials, and then presented a final proposal which was adopted by the Tumwater Parks Board in late April and the City Council this week. Their next step will involve a community publicity campaign to attract youngsters to participate in the program. With that accomplished prior to the end of the school year, Ms. Pendergrass as coordinator, and Rapp as her assistant, then will operate the program they have planned, under the general direction of Parks Superintendent Brown. Both will be paid for their work and will receive academic credit in the process. Depending on the work load involved, a third student may be hired to help run the program.

Tumwater in the last decade has twice tried to operate a summer recreation program, but with limited success. This year marks the first time a systematically-planned, full-blown program has been put together. City officials hope it will serve as a model for both continuation and expansion in future years.

EDUCATION FACULTY MEMBERS TO VISIT MAY 16

Faculty members from education departments at all of the colleges and universities in Western Washington have been invited to an all-day conference at Evergreen May 16. The invitations, extended by Provost Edward J. Kormondy, ask the educators to discuss the "Nature of the Evergreen Curriculum" and related issues with faculty, staff and students at the all-day conference, which is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m.

The educators will also discuss means of assuring Evergreen credit transferability to the certification programs of the other colleges and universities. "Evergreen has no plans for a program to certify teachers," Kormondy said. "But, we want to make sure that Evergreen students who do want to become teachers can easily transfer their credits to schools with offer teacher certification."

Educators will tour the campus, visit academic programs, and discuss mutual problems. They will complete the day's activities by offering feedback on their perspectives of Evergreen at a public meeting scheduled from 3 to 4:30 p.m. in Library 3112.

NEW YORK ARTIST DONATES BOOKS; PROCEEDS TO AID STUDENT ARTISTS

Joseph James Akston, internationally known editor/publisher of Arts Magazine, has donated ten copies of his book, The Beginning of the Beginning to Evergreen, according to his step grandson Gary Marcus, an Evergreen junior. Akston, a New York painter, whose works were recently on exhibit in the Evergreen gallery, based the book on a series of his paintings devoted to "The Evolution of Life." Full color plates and accompanying text "make the viewer see the creation of the world with the eye of an artist," according to Akston's publisher.

Copies of the book are now on sale at the Bookstore for $10 --- $5 less than the normal retail price. Proceeds from the sale of the books will go into the Don Heard Memorial Fund for Evergreen art students. Heard, a former Evergreen faculty member and artist, was killed in an accident in 1971.

THREE TO RECEIVE "PIONEERING" AWARDS

An Olympia banker, a former accounting student, and a faculty member will receive special "pioneering" awards during the May 17 Spring Quarter Cooperative Education Workshop at Evergreen. Honored as the trio who joined to provide the first academic "on-the-job" internship at Evergreen will be Carl Hanson, President of Thurston County Bank and the intern employer; student Leslie Kinley of Bellevue, who was the intern and is now employed by the State Department of Revenue; and faculty academic sponsor E. Jackson Webb.

Since that first internship, generated at the start of Evergreen's first quarter of instruction --- September, 1971 --- the college's Cooperative Education program has grown into a major component of the curriculum. Through Winter Quarter, 1974, the Co-op Office had coordinated placement of more than 1300 students who have earned credit while gaining practical field experience in business, industry, education, government, the professions, social agencies, and community action organizations.

The special awards will be presented during a workshop luncheon, according to Evergreen Co-op Director Ken Donohue. Donohue reports that his office also plans to issue certificates of appreciation to all persons who have served as field supervisors for students participating in the Cooperative Education program.

BRENNER IN SEATTLE HOSPITAL, CONDITION "SERIOUS"

Faculty Member Susan Brenner was hospitalized last week in Seattle's Group Health Hospital for brain surgery. The 29-year-old faculty member was operated on May 3. She was in intensive care and her condition was listed as "serious" as the Newsletter went to press.

Ms. Brenner, a faculty member in art, was hired last summer on a one-year contract. She was formerly employed as an art instructor for the San Francisco Jewish Community Center and has a master of art's degree in painting from California State University.

CATALOG WINS NATIONAL PUBLICATIONS AWARD

Evergreen's 1974-75 Catalog has won a national publications award in competition sponsored by the American College Public Relations Association (ACPRA), it was announced today by Joanne Orndorff of Temple University, who chaired the selection panel. The 320-page Evergreen publication won a Special Citation in the catalog category of the competition. A record 1,450 entries were submitted this year, with 112 singled out --- in the words of the judges --- "as outstanding examples of college and university publications endeavors."

Evergreen's catalog, used primarily as a means of introducing prospective students to the institution, was edited by Dick Nichols, Director of Public Information, and designed by Connie Hubbard, Artist-Illustrator in the college library. Calligraphy for the publication was done by Tim Girvin, a Spokane student, who recently graduated and will serve as a Summer faculty member at Evergreen.

Photographs in the award-winning catalog were taken by Woody Hirzel, library Photo-Media Specialist; Craig Hickman, staff photographer; and student Stu Tilger of Seattle. A computer-graphic drawing which provided the publication's cover design was prepared by two students, Rick Speer and Frankie Foster, both of Bellevue. Speer and Foster were organizers of the International Computer Film Festival held at Evergreen last March.

The catalog was produced by the Washington State Department of Printing. ACPRA is a professional organization composed of public relations, development, and other communications personnel from colleges and universities throughout the United States, as well as several foreign countries.

BETTY KUTTER RECEIVES $22,307 HEW GRANT

Betty Kutter, an Evergreen faculty member, has been awarded a $22,307 grant by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for continued research in "DNA regulation during T4 infection of E. coli." Ms. Kutter, a biophysicist, said the grant is the second one-year award she has received for her three-year project on which she began work last Spring. The work is a continuation of research she initiated in 1969 while serving as a research associate at the University of Virginia.

"We're investigating a virus, T4, which infects the E. coli bacteria, a common bacteria of the lower digestive track," she said. "We're trying to work out some aspects of control of the synthesis of different proteins." Ms. Kutter said the research is primarily conducted by two assistants, Ruth Sluss and Ann Beug, and also involves a number of Evergreen students who are enrolled in her academic program in biochemistry and molecular biology.

"The research has given students a chance to gain an in-depth knowledge of laboratory techniques," she said. "They've been able to use the facilities extensively and have attended graduate-level research seminars at the University of Washington as a result of both their academic and research work." Ms. Kutter said she is also working with enzymes that the virus creates which break up the basic genetic material, DNA, into gene-sized pieces. The work could provide valuable information for future genetic therapy, she said.

ASIAN AMERICAN AWARENESS WORKSHOP SET MONDAY, MAY 13

An Asian American Awareness workshop will be held at Evergreen May 13 from 2 to 4:30 p.m. in the main lobby of the Library. Featured speakers at the half-day event, sponsored by the Evergreen Asian American Coalition, include Mitch Matsudaira, chairman of the Washington State Asian American Affairs; Art Wang, a Tacoma VISTA worker with the Asian American Alliance; Larry Yok, Affirmative Action officer for the City of Olympia, and York Wong, Evergreen's director of computer services.

Also scheduled to appear are members of the Asian American Multi-Media Theater Troupe of Seattle, who will perform at 3:30 p.m. Both the speakers' presentations and the dance performance are free and open to the public.

SPEER AND FOSTER INVITED TO YUGOSLAVIAN FILM FESTIVAL

Two Evergreen students --- Frankie Foster and Richard Speer --- have been invited to participate in the Summer 1974 World Festival of Animated Film at Zagreb, Yugoslavia. Speer and Foster, both of Bellevue, said their five-minute film, "Phosphenes," a computer-animated movie, was one of 34 selected from the United States to be shown at the international event.

More than 400 entries were submitted to the juried festival this year, 150 of them from the United States. Only 102 were selected from throughout the world.

The two student filmmakers, who also organized the International Computer Film Festival held at Evergreen last March, are currently seeking funds for their transportation to the event. The festival provides lodging and meals for invited participants.

Evergreen Faculty Member Gordon Beck will also attend the event.

BECK TO REPRESENT U.S. ASSOCIATION IN FRANCE

Faculty Member Gordon Beck has been selected to represent the United States for the University Film Association at the International Festival of Student Films in Grenoble, France June 29-July 4. Beck, who lead a six-month student filmmakers program in Italy Fall and Winter quarters, will attend the festival along with students and film teachers from throughout the world under sponsorship of the Centre International de Liaison des Ecoles de Cinema et de Television (International Center of Liaison Between Schools of Cinema and Television).

TWO NEW DTF's CHARGED

Two new Disappearing Task Forces have been charged this week one to review salary guidelines approved by the Board of Trustees last December; the other to screen prospective applicants for a Career Counseling Specialist.

President Charles J. McCann appointed Business Manager Ken Winkley to chair the first meeting of the Salary Review DTF which will meet today (May 10) at 12:30 p.m. in Library 3112. Other DTF members include staff members Malcolm Stilson, Edwina Travis-Dorsey, Debbie Hodgkin, Percy Berry; faculty members Phil Harding, David Peterson and Don Chan, and students James Briller and Robynne Snow. They are asked to present modifications to the policy which "reflect changed circumstances" to President McCann within 30 days.

The Career Counseling Specialist DTF met May 7 to prepare for screening potential applicants. DTF members include Academic Dean Byron Youtz, staff members Ken Donohue, Gail Martin, Thomas Ybarra and Lou-Ellen Peffer, Faculty Member Karin Syverson, and students Cathy Burnstead and Johanna Nitzke.
