300 ADMISSIONS OFFICERS AND COUNSELORS HERE FRIDAY

More than 300 college and university admissions officers and high school counselors from Washington, Oregon and Alaska will gather at Evergreen Friday (April 6) for the Spring meeting of the Pacific Northwest Association of College Admissions Counselors.

Admissions Director David Brown said keynote speaker for the all-day event will be Frank Newman, Director of University Relations at Stanford University and former chairman of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare Task Force on Higher Education. Newman will discuss "Innovative Education," in his 9:30 morning address. It will provide the topic for discussions by a panel of educational experts including Dr. James Furman, Executive Coordinator of the Washington Council on Higher Education; Dr. David Winter, Vice President and Academic Dean at Spokane's Whitworth College; Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, member of the Oregon State Board of Higher Education; and Mrs. Sarah Knox, counselor at Catlin Gabel High School in Portland.

Evergreen is also scheduled to play host to more than 250 members of the American Association of University Women, who will hold their Washington State convention in Olympia April 6-8. Members will gather on campus Saturday afternoon to hear a formal presentation about the college's goals, objectives and academic programs. Featured speakers will be President Charles J. McCann, Academic Dean Charles Teske, and five students who will make a panel presentation to the delegates.

Some 30 members of the American College Public Relations Association were also scheduled to meet at Evergreen Thursday for a mini-conference on the use of electronic media in PR work.

SPRING QUARTER ENROLLMENT: 1778

Registrar Perrin Smith reports a Spring Quarter enrollment of approximately 1778 students, a figure which includes 28 part-time students who completed registration April 2. The count will not be official until the tenth class day, April 13.

final project an $185,000 apartment complex

MARCH GRADUATE BOWS OUT IN A BIG WAY

Graduating seniors often prepare some kind of final term project during their last quarter in college. Gary Foreman of Tacoma, who completed his bachelor's degree at Evergreen March 23, bowed out in a big way. Foreman tackled the mammoth job of helping with the design, construction and renting of a $185,000 22-unit apartment complex in Federal Way.

The native of Mead, Washington began his studies at Evergreen like many other students. He enrolled in a Coordinated Studies program with 100 other students for one quarter, then spent half a quarter in a smaller group helping design a city park for Lacey. The 20-acre park was planned totally by Evergreen students and eventually received complete funding to the tune of $101,816 from federal, state, and local governments.

RECEIVED A GOOD FOUNDATION FIRST

"That project gave me a good foundation in environmental planning," Foreman said. "I studied governmental regulations, urban planning, budget preparation --- all aspects of creating a park from surveying the property to final submission of the request for funding." Foreman has always been interested in real estate work, so he decided to consult with academic advisers to determine what other training he needed. Following their recommendations, he secured a full-time internship through the Office of Cooperative Education with Pierce County Assessor Ken Johnson.

"Working under him, I earned state certification as an appraiser of real estate," he said. "I graduated from a commercial appraiser to a new construction cost estimator and began to develop expertise in cost analysis of apartments." To become certified as an appraiser, Foreman took three four-to-five hour state exams and passed all with flying colors. He was then hired as a full-time employee of the Assessor's office with a Commercial IV rating.

"But I wanted to learn more about the real estate business," he said. So, for his final quarter, Foreman maintained his 40-hour per week job with Johnson and entered into a partnership to build a 22-unit apartment complex in Federal Way. In addition to his academic work at Evergreen, the young businessman took courses in construction labor laws, real estate law, organization and planning, and career salesmanship "so I could learn how best to sell our project to investors and banking institutions."

HAD TO THOROUGHLY RESEARCH APARTMENT MARKET

He also had to thoroughly research the apartment market in the Federal Way area, study alternative kinds of construction materials, estimate costs for construction and keep those costs low enough so the rental prices would be saleable. "The estimating of costs has to be done very tightly," he explained. "Two dollars off on the cost of roofing or flooring or wiring or any key item would not mean we'd lose money. We just wouldn't make any." Foreman said he constantly strives for "ball park figures --- within a penny on smaller items, within a quarter on the larger ones."

The father of two children, Foreman said he worked throughout his college career, usually holding down a full-time job in addition to running a part-time janitorial business with his wife, Karen. This past quarter he has worked 40 hours a week with Johnson, 30 hours a week with the academic and business demands of the construction partnership, and up to 15 hours a week with his janitorial business.

"Now that I've finished college, I will continue working at the Assessor's Office and with the construction project, and I hope to expand our janitorial business," he said. "I can handle all of these because I was able to carefully tailor my academic studies at Evergreen to fit my exact career goals."

The Tacoman is a graduate of Mead, Washington High School and attended three colleges his first two years. Had he to plan his college career over again, Foreman concludes: "I'd follow the same pattern --- from two years of general studies, to upper division specialized studies, to an internship and finally, to an individual study project. It's not only prepared me for a good career --- but the final project hopefully will be highly profitable as well."

TWO MARCH GRADUATES LAND JOBS IN PLANNING

Rich Scheffel and Phil Bridges, both March graduates from Evergreen, have landed jobs through the Lewis County Regional Planning Commission. Scheffel, who has worked for the Commission the past two years, has been named director of the Lewis County Parks and Recreation Board, a new organization which he will create and direct. Bridges has been hired as a planner by the Commission. Both students were members of the Urban Planning group contract under direction of Faculty Member Russell Fox. Both men provide, according to Kevin King, Director of the Lewis County Commission, "very good examples" of what can be done with an Evergreen degree in the job market.

JOURNALISM WORKSHOP SLATED APRIL 10

Students interested in working on the campus newspaper are invited to participate in a three-hour journalism workshop April 10 from 1 to 4 p.m. in room 3121 of the Library. Directed by Faculty Member Will Humphreys and Information Services Director Dick Nichols, the workshop will cover basic elements in news writing, the differences between 'straight' news and features, commentary or analysis and editorials; objectively in reporting; freedom of the press; organization of a newsroom; coverage of beats; and organization of publications. An exercise in news writing also will be offered. Interested students are asked to bring paper, pencils and an example of their own writing which can be shared with the group.

EVERGREENER FINALIST IN NEW YORK FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM

Teresa Baldwin, a fourth-year student from Vancouver, has been chosen as one of 40 finalists in nationwide competition for 20 positions in the City of New York's Urban Fellowship Program. Ms. Baldwin, a 1969 graduate of Columbia River High School and a transfer from the University of Washington, will join the other finalists in New York City April 7 for personal interviews. A decision on winners of the 20 full-time internships as Urban Fellows for the 1973-74 academic year will be made by April 30.

The New York City Urban Fellowship, the first of its kind in the country, offers students $4,000 stipends plus round-trip expenses from their homes. The program provides work experience in city government and fellows are assigned responsibilities in administrative problem-solving, research, policy planning and related management areas.

SEARCH FOR DIRECTOR OF COMPUTER SERVICES CONTINUES

More than 100 applicants for the position of director of computer services have been scanned by a DTF and narrowed down to 21 final applicants, according to Controller Ken Winkley. Each of the finalists has been asked to complete an application file by April 19 so the Computer Director's DTF can review the information and narrow down the field from 21 to three or four candidates. Those persons will then be invited to Evergreen for interviews. Final appointment of the director will be made by Provost Ed Kormondy.

APRIL SYMPOSIUM AVAILABLE

Editors Ida Daum, Dave Marr and Sid White report that copies of the April issue of The Evergreen Symposium are now on sale for $1 each in the college bookstore. Pre-paid subscribers should receive their copies in the campus mail. Any subscriber who doesn't receive a copy should contact Program Secretary Pearl Vincent in Library Office 2114. The theme of the latest Symposium is "Community" at Evergreen. The publication features articles by faculty members Dave Hitchens, Matt Smith and Richard Alexander and students Kaslon Zoller, John Foster, David Ettinger and Bob Thomsen.

The tri-editors also report that copies of the March issue still are available in the bookstore for $1 apiece. And, planning has begun for the May edition, which will deal with Evergreen's "Public Image." Contributions to the May issue should reach the editors (through Library Office 2114) by April 15.

KAOS RECEIVES FINAL LICENSE

Evergreen's campus FM radio station, KAOS, was awarded its final license by the Federal Communication Commission March 13, according to student station manager Dean Katz. The license is subject to renewal after three years. Prior to granting of the license, the station was operating under FCC program testing authority.

DISCOUNTED SCRIPT OFFERED BY SAGA FOOD SERVICES

Evergreeners have the opportunity to purchase discounted scripts redeemable for all items sold through Campus Food Services. The script, which will be honored throughout the quarter, may be purchased from SAGA at a 10 per cent discount in $10, $25 and $100 denominations, which means, for example, that $10 scripts will sell for $9 plus tax.

Students Accounts Supervisor John Moss said the script was offered as one means of "easing the impact of higher food costs for meat items as well as for some pastry and beverage items." The script is not refundable, Moss said, but "it is fully transferrable. This means you can let your friends use it whenever you wish."

SAGA began its first full quarter of operation April 2 under the direction of Manager Craig McCarty. He has announced the following schedule for operation of Food Services: Breakfast, 7:30 to 10 a.m., Lunch, 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., Dinner, 5 to 6 p.m., and Grill, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

CINEMARCHIVES SERIES TAKING ON AN INTERNATIONAL FLAVOR

The Cinemarchives Series will take on an international flavor Spring Quarter, according to Faculty Member Gordon Beck, who is sponsoring the program. "We'll be stressing the international aspects of post-war cinema," Beck said. Lectures will deal with movies that are similar in style and content to the films being shown. The series, which is free and open to the public, is held every Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Lecture Hall One. Scheduled for Spring Quarter are:

POETRY AWARD COMPETITION SPONSORED BY EVERGREEN AND OLYMPIA ATTORNEYS

Residents of Thurston, Mason and Lewis Counties have been invited to submit entries for the Annual Carol and Herbert Fuller Poetry Award competition, jointly sponsored by two Olympia attorneys and Evergreen in connection with the Governor's Festival of the Arts. Awards will be presented during a poetry gala in the Evergreen Library, starting at 7:30 p.m., May 6.

Attorneys Carol and Herb Fuller of Olympia created the poetry award program in conjunction with the college. Any resident of the three counties is eligible to participate in the contest, with entries due by April 16. Awards will be made in two categories: a junior award for the best poem submitted by a person prior to his or her 18th birthday, and a senior award for the best poem submitted by a person 18 years of age or older. Entries can be submitted to the Fuller Poetry Award, Library Group, Evergreen. Each entry must be accompanied by a brief statement identifying the poet by name, address and age and any additional biographical information the entrant may wish to include.

LEATHER WORKSHOPS BEGIN MONDAY

Six three-hour leather workshops will begin Monday (April 9) at 7 p.m. in Building 211. McKenzie Musick will instruct the workshops on construction of sandals, moccasins, belts, purses, and "whatever else anyone may wish to try." Tools and supplies will be available, but interested persons will have to pay for the leather they use. The workshops, which cost $10, will be held every Monday for six weeks.

URBAN PLANNING STUDENTS CONTRACT WITH THURSTON COUNTY PARKS

Students in the Urban Planning Group Contract have signed an agreement with the Thurston County Parks Board to provide general recreational research and to complete topographical and biological surveys on a 19-acre park site near Boston Harbor. Faculty Member Russell Fox said three students will carry primary responsibility for the project. They will produce a recreational history of the Thurston County area, a survey of public recreational facilities and a statement of philosophy and general guidelines for recreational development within the county.

"They'll also be involved with development of the Burfoot property near Boston Harbor," Fox said. The 19-acre site, which is located on Budd Inlet, has been purchased by the Board for future development as a park. Students will conduct a topographical survey under the direction and supervision of county engineers and will also complete a study of its geology, soils, drainage patterns, and water quality, as well as its vegetation and wildlife.

The three students, Bob Grochow, Becky Liebman and Marjori Yung, will be working with 12 other members of the Urban Planning contract "as they are needed for different aspects of the project," Fox said. They expect to work throughout Spring Quarter and possibly throughout the summer on the project, which will involve preparing preliminary alternative development proposals for the Burfoot property in its final stages, Fox said. The Park Board has allocated $800 to the students to cover their travel expenses and supplies.
