SUMMER ENROLLMENT HIGHER THAN EXPECTED

More than 830 students had enrolled for Summer Quarter as the Newsletter went to Press Wednesday. Academic Dean Willie Parson estimated the final total student enrollment would tally around 866 with a full-time equivalent (FTE) of 753, which is somewhat higher than was planned for earlier this year.

Parson said the college's original budget request from the legislature requested funds for exactly those figures, but that later in the year the projections for summer enrollment were reduced. Forty-three faculty members, including two who are assigned to the Learning Services Center, are contracted for the ten-week summer session, but many of them are not full-time. He said the faculty student ratio --- of about 1 faculty member per 20 students --- would remain fairly constant during the summer session even though the enrollment is "about 100 more than we had originally hoped for." The "overload," he added, is being absorbed in part by a few faculty who are not on summer contract and a few staff persons who are taking student contracts without compensation.

"BLUE RIBBON" BUSINESS ADVISORY PANEL NAMED

Formation of a 13-member blue ribbon Business Advisory Committee to assist faculty members and academic officers plan for the establishment of business administration study programs at Evergreen was announced today by Academic Dean Rudy Martin. The committee, composed of executives from Washington business and industrial concerns, will meet periodically with Evergreen academic planners in hopes of launching pilot business studies during Fall Quarter, 1975, followed by the development of a more comprehensive academic program by Fall, 1976, Martin said.

"Planning for business studies has been underway for several months and is now nearing a point where we think we can begin matching Evergreen's particular study programs with the needs of business and industry for graduates who are academic generalists but who have strong career interests in those areas," Martin added. "The idea is to develop the kinds of studies that fit Evergreen's academic programs while taking the needs of business into account. This requires interchange between academic planners and businessmen so that we can gain an awareness of each other's needs and problems and plan the kinds of study programs that make practical sense in today's society. We think the advisory committee will fill that need and help Evergreen develop unique but very effective business curricula that takes students far beyond merely theoretical approaches to solving difficult management problems."

Lawrence E. Hall, Executive Vice President of Puget Sound Power and Light Company in Seattle serves as chairman of the advisory committee. Other members include David Gordon, President of the Association of Washington Business; Stanley Little, Vice President of The Boeing Company; Lowry Wyatt, Executive Vice President of Weyerhaeuser Company; James Stubner, Pacific Northwest Bell; Howard O. Scott, President, United Mutual Savings and Loan; James Senna, Vice President, Olympia Brewing Company; Morley Petersen, President, Precision Wood Products Company of Vancouver, Washington; Orville Melby, Vice President, Rainier National Bank in Seattle; William Casterline, regional director for public relations, Sears-Roebuck, Co.; Michael McGowan, President, Klauser Corporation of Tacoma; Eric Van of Peat, Marwick and Mitchell, Certified Public Accountants, Seattle; and George Kinnear, attorney and former Director of the State Department of Revenue.

Kinnear, working on a consulting basis for several months, and Martin spearheaded formation of the Business Advisory Committee.

MOSS CASE DISMISSED BY JUDGE DORAN

Thurston County Superior Court Judge Robert Doran issued a memorandum opinion June 17 granting Evergreen's motion to dismiss the John Moss case from further court review.

The case arose last November when Administrative Vice President Dean Clabaugh appointed Moss to the dual directorship of Personnel and Auxiliary Services. Several members of the faculty, staff and student body appealed Clabaugh's decision to an All-Campus Hearing Board which on Jan. 27 reversed Clabaugh's action. A month later the Board of Trustees, following an appeal by Clabaugh of the Hearing Board's decision, declared the action was "within his authority" and that "nothing illegal was involved in the management decision made."

Petitioners, counseled by attorney Hap Freund, an Evergreen faculty member, on March 26 filed a petition for Superior Court review, contending that Clabaugh's appointment process violated several sections of Evergreen's Human Rights document.

In his memorandum opinion, Judge Doran ruled that the dispute did not qualify as a "contested case;" that the petitioners were "not aggrieved parties" within the legal definition; and that the petitioners did not have the right to "appeal from the decision of the Board (of Trustees) approving the manner in which the dual position was filled."

"The combining and filling the dual position is not a judicial or quasi judicial function of the administrators of the College," he ruled. "Accordingly the decision is not subject to review by the courts..."

The complete text of Judge Doran's decision is available at the Information Center.

TODAY LAST CHANCE TO REGISTER FOR SUMMER WORKSHOPS

Registration for 19 summer workshops --- ranging in topics from belly dancing to underwater marine appreciation, horse back riding to fencing --- will conclude today at 6 p.m. in the College Recreation Center offices.

Ed King, director of Leisure Education programming, said the non-credit generating workshops will be held during the weekday and early evenings and will cost from $5 to $40 each. "Enrollment will be on a first-come, first-served basis," he added, "and workshop fees, which must be paid in advance, will not be refunded."

TWO GRANTS AWARDED FOR FURTHER DDT-RELATED STUDIES

The U.S. Forest Service has awarded Evergreen a $41,000 contract to continue research into the effects of DDT applications on non-target organisms, and the Washington State Game Department has presented Evergreen a $5,500 contract for similar studies on the effects of the new pesticide Fenitrothion.

Steve Herman, Evergreen faculty ecologist and director of both grant projects, says the Forest Service award will enable students to continue studies originally funded in May of 1974 by a $29,000 grant from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. The EPA grant sent students, all members of the Ecology and Chemistry of Pollution Coordinated Studies program, to fields and the laboratory to examine effects of DDT applications on small birds, shrews and insects.

"The new Forest Service grant will enable us to spend another six months examining the long range effects of those DDT applications in test areas near Enterprise, Oregon," Herman said. The Game Department grant will finance studies by three students in an area near Twisp, Washington on the effects of Fenitrothion, which, Herman said, may prove to be a replacement for DDT.

ADDITIONAL LEEP FUNDS GRANTED

Evergreen has received an additional $1,214 from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's Law Enforcement Education Program, according to Financial Aid Director Kay Atwood. The additional grant brings Evergreen's total LEEP award for the 1974-75 academic year to $27,973. Atwood said the money has already been allocated to Summer Quarter students.

Four full-time and two visiting appointments to Evergreen's faculty have been announced by Provost Ed Kormondy. All six appointments become effective Sept. 15, 1975.

Named to three-year faculty posts are: Therese Bonin, language and literature; Lowell Kuehn, sociology and criminology; Alan Nasser, philosophy; and Greg Steinke, music. Visiting appointments have been contracted with Kathleen Lebo and Dale Noyd, both in the field of psychology.

Dr. Bonin, an assistant professor of languages at Ohio State University, has taught in her homeland of France and at the University of Florida. A Fulbright scholar, she has recently published a basic reader on language instruction. Dr. Kuehn has most recently served as an assistant professor of sociology at the University of California at Riverside where he has also directed U.C.'s graduate program in sociology. Another sociologist, Dr. Nasser has taught at the University of Oregon and has published numerous articles dealing with philosophy, a subject in which he has his doctorate.

Steinke is currently on the music faculty at California State University at Northridge. He has authored more than two dozen musical compositions and is an accomplished musician. Dr. Lebo, who will be a visiting faculty member for one year, is currently a counselor and assistant professor of psychology at Earlham College in Richmond, Indiana. She has also accumulated more than two years of clinical experience in a variety of medical facilities, including veterans' hospitals, a youth center and a state hospital. Also on the staff of Earlham College, Noyd has accepted a half-time appointment at Evergreen for the coming year. He is currently coordinator for Earlham's Center for Human Development and Social Relations and is a former captain in the U.S. Air Force where he taught psychology at the Air Force Academy in Colorado.

EVERGREENERS IN THE NEWS

He's showing the trophy to all interested passersby...

And, Gary Norton, a June 1974 grad from New York, has been accepted into Radcliffe College's Publishing Procedures Course, sponsored by Harvard University. The intensive professional program is designed for those who are seriously considering a career in book or magazine publishing and enrollment in the program is limited and highly competitive.

OPERA COMES TO EVERGREEN JULY 7

Opera will come to Evergreen next month with the beginning of Ring Cycle Coordinated Studies program being offered in conjunction with the Seattle Opera Association's Northwest Festival production of Richard Wagner's "Der Ring Der Nibelungen." Academic Dean Charles Teske will coordinate the unique summer program in cooperation with Evergreen Faculty Member Bill Winden and Visiting Faculty Member Walter Aschaffenburg, professor of composition and music theory at Oberlin College Conservatory of Music.

Aschaffenburg, a highly active composer in his own right, was born in Germany and educated at Oberlin and the Eastman School of Music. His works include "Ozymandias: Symphonic Reflections for Orchestra," which has been performed by the Eastman-Rochester Symphony Orchestra and the Cleveland Orchestra; and "Three Dances," also performed by the Cleveland Orchestra. He has also composed and had produced a full-length opera, "Bartleby."

The study program will run July 7-28 and include workshops, lectures, seminars and critique sessions for discussion of the music of the Ring, and has been scheduled so that all participants receive a week of instruction prior to actual productions of the Ring in Seattle. The German version of the cycle --- which is some 14 hours long and spans four complete operas given within six days --- will be presented July 15 to July 20. The English version will run from July 22 to July 27.

Opportunities for auditing the program are still available, according to Teske. In addition, Evergreeners and community members will have a chance to attend free lectures July 7-11 beginning at 7:30 p.m. in Lecture Hall Five, and to view films relating to Wagner's Ring furnished by the Embassy and the (Seattle) General Consulate of the Federal Republic of Germany. An exact schedule of program lectures and films will be available at a later date. Watch the Newsletter and/or the Happenings for it.

DEVELOPMENT BROCHURE WINS AWARD

The "Challenge of Change," a brochure published by Evergreen's Development Office, has received an award of merit from the Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE). The brochure, produced under the supervision of former Development Director Marianne Nelson Godwin, was written by Barnes and Roche, a New York consulting firm. Photographs were taken by Ari Cowan, a professional photographer from Bellevue, and design work was done by Connie Hubbard, Evergreen graphics designer.
